Another Wallenda Aerialist Killed

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Yetta Grotofent, 42, of the famed circus aerialist family, the Wallendas, died in a 50-foot fall from her slender gray pole at a Shrine Circus performance Thursday night.

She had reached the climax of her solo act and was swaying back and forth in a wide arc when, as the pole was on a back swing, Yetta suddenly tumbled backward and plummeted to her death as 4,666 spectators watched in awed silence.

She was the third member of the troupe to die in a fall in the last 16 months.

Dieter Schepp, 23, and Richard Faughnan, 29, were killed in Detroit on Jan. 30, 1962, in a high wire accident involving seven members of the troupe.

Yetta was not a member of that act.

What caused the death of the 42-year-old Yeta?

A member of the Kristensen troupe of equestrians said in a taped interview that "I think she must have passed out up there because she didn't scream or nothing."

Several other circus people said they had heard Yetta wasn't feeling well before she began her solo act.

Some spectators said the aerialist appeared to slip.

In an interview in Detroit in 1958, Yetta had said that when she was on the indoor pole "it seems so little I feel I have to do more to impress the audience. I get a little reckless."

That comment had followed her explanation of her preference for the 12 1/2-foot pole she used outdoors and on which, she said: "You can really sway, what with the height and the wind."

Fellow performers said Yetta has been nervous since the circus opened here Monday. They said her apparatus had been damaged last week in Florida and temporary repairs had been made.

Yetta fell face upward until she hit a guide rope 15 feet above the sawdust floor.

The impact spun her around and she hit the floor spread-eagled and face downward. She never uttered a sound as she fell. Among the first to reach the stricken woman was her husband Arthur, who had rigged the ropes for her act and was standing about 50 feet from where she landed. He was given sedatives after the accident.

Circus performers said the dead woman was born Henrietta Kreis in Germany and that with her sister, Helen, she came to the United States and joined the Wallenda troupe. Helen married Karl Wallenda.

Arthur Grotofent is Karl's half brother. The Grotofents lived in Sarasota, Fla.

OAS Panel Urges Action Against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special committee of the Organization of American States has recommended that all of the American republics organize to "give battle" to communism.

The OAS document was drafted by a committee of representatives from Argentina, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Panama, Peru, El Salvador and the United States.

"The intensification of the Soviet military power in Cuba is the source of grave concern for all the governments and peoples of the continent," the report says. The committee recommended that member nations:

1. Enforce all existing recommendations of inter-American conferences and meetings of foreign ministers held since 1948 in relation to subversion and handling of agents of sabotage and propaganda.

2. Build up security and intelligence services to put them in a position "to give battle to subversive activities of international communism."

3. Avail themselves of technical services of the OAS on security matters.

4. Exchange information among the different nations on activities of followers of Cuba Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Communists.

Philippines Claims Deal To Be Altered

Expose of Lobbyist's Gifts to Solons Brings Call for Second Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield gave top priority today to proposed revamping of the Philippines war claims bill after disclosure of a lobbyist's campaign gifts to Congress members sympathetic to the bill.

But Mansfield made it clear he is "certain in my own mind that no member of the Senate was influenced by these contributions in any way and they did not affect their votes on legislation."

The Montanan was referring to 1960 contributions by Washington lawyer-lobbyist John A. O'Donnell—including gifts of $2,000 to Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., and $500 each to Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee released testimony Thursday that pictured O'Donnell as interested in passage of the $73-million war claims bill because he stood to gain from $150,000 to nearly a half-million dollars in fees.

Zablocki and Miller were chief sponsors of the bill in the House. Humphrey introduced it in the Senate. It passed both bodies last summer by a voice vote—with no record roll call.

The bill provides for payment of individual damage claims growing out of Japanese occupation of the Philippines in World War II. None of the money has been dispensed yet.

Mansfield said he supports fully a proposed amendment by J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations Committee chairman, to provide for a lump sum payment to the Philippines government. This, said Fulbright, would cut off O'Donnell's fees.

O'Donnell already has collected $265,000 in fees under a 1956 act authorizing war damage payments to religious groups in the Philippines, Fulbright said.

In a statement after disclosure of O'Donnell's contributions, the lobbyist said his activities "have been no different than those of several hundred other practicing attorneys, including former members of both houses of Congress."

Elida Mayor Slayer Gets Life Sentence

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Robert G. Lafferty, 22, of Lima, one of two men charged with murdering the Elida mayor more than a year ago, was sentenced to life imprisonment Thursday by a three-judge panel.

Lafferty and Larry Hance, 22, were both charged with the March 10, 1962, fatal shooting of the Elida mayor and Constable, Clarence Prince. Hance is awaiting trial for first-degree murder.

The judges, John H. Davison and John Z. Harnischfeger, both of Lima, and Paul Dull of Celina, pronounced the life sentence three days after Lafferty suddenly switched his plea to guilty and requested that a three-judge panel be named to determine the degree of his guilt.

Lafferty's action came as the selection of a jury to hear his case started the second week.

Prince was shot down as he started to investigate a car. Lafferty reportedly told police that he and Hance were in the process of planning a robbery of the Elida bank at the time.

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—A 12-year-old Maumee girl was honored Thursday night by law enforcement officials from eight Ohio counties for saving a 9-year-old boy and his 250-pound father from drowning last year.

The North Central Ohio Crime Clinic presented its third annual Valor Award to Debra Graber.

Her heroic act occurred last June at a motel in Georgia. She jumped into a pool to save the child, then had to rescue the father, who jumped in unable to swim. She weighed 75 pounds then.

Cuban Exile Leader Claims Kennedy Gives Castro Immunity To Aid Khrush

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, stepping down as leader of Cubans in exile, charges that President Kennedy has given Fidel Castro "absolute immunity in the execution of Khrushchev's sinister designs."

In a 6,500-word resignation letter that split the Cuban Revolutionary Council apart, Miro accused Kennedy of backing out on a promise of a second invasion and of "liquidating" the struggle for Cuba.

And he warned that the Soviet premier, "day by day, will increase his army of local Communists" in the Western Hemisphere until a "terrifying catastrophe" develops.

In support of Miro and his stand, nine members of the 16-man council quit during a 4 1/2-hour session that followed Miro's departure.

No successor was chosen to head the council, which was formed with U.S. government support to launch the futile invasion at the Bay of Pigs. But Dr. Manuel Antonio de Varona, Miro's right-hand man, said he would seek to strengthen the council by wooing more of the many exile groups into its ranks. And he said every effort would be made to gain U.S. help for the Cuban exile cause.

Miro, first prime minister of the Castro regime who later defeated, said Kennedy told him at a meeting in the White House April 10, 1962, nearly a year after the first invasion, that the problem of Cuba was essentially a military one and that the council should contribute the major contingent of soldiers.

"I left the White House with the assurance that the administration of Cuba would follow soon with Cubans at the vanguard in battle," he said. He indicated that this was to be in connection with the Cuban blockade that President Kennedy proclaimed Oct. 22, 1962.

Later, he said, U.S. policy on Cuba "shifted suddenly, violently and unexpectedly" and "the struggle for Cuba was in the process of being liquidated by the government."

The United States was the victim of a "master move" by the Soviets, Miro declared.

During the negotiations that followed the blockade, he asserted, Khrushchev maintained his attack and subversion base in the Caribbean, strengthened Castro's military capacity to the point where he could smash an uprising of the Cuban people, and "immobilized" the United States and the rest of the Western Hemisphere.

"These, in all their crude reality, are the facts," Miro said.

"The repeated assurances, the constantly renewed promises, have been suddenly liquidated."

JFK Believes Slash To Cost Million Jobs

Cutback in Spending Also Seen Offsetting Tax Relief Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today a $5 billion cut in his budget would cost a million jobs and offset all the benefits from a proposed tax cut.

In an address prepared for a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the President said he wasn't saying that federal spending is desirable just for the sake of spending, or that economy efforts should stop.

But, in words aimed obviously at Republican critics who have been calling for reductions of up to $15 billion in his $100 billion budget, Kennedy said:

"But I am saying that carefully screened and selected federal expenditure programs can play a useful role, both singly and in combination that to cut $5 billion to $10 billion from the proposed budget would harm both the nation and the typical neighborhood in it; and that the right way to a balanced budget is to seek first a balanced economy. The tax cuts I have proposed, and the level of expenditures I have proposed, have been carefully fitted together with that chief objective in mind."

For the most part, the speech dealt with economics at home. Kennedy drew a picture of a typical American community he called "Random Village," and told at length how it is affected by activities of the federal government.

But the President also referred at the outset to the Cuban invasion fiasco of two years ago and the handling of the Cuban crisis of last October, and he said that "there is today more widespread assurance that both peace and freedom can prevail."

He added that, while vigilance cannot be relaxed, there is a tendency among many newspaper readers and writers to devote more attention to the domestic scene. So he, too, concentrated on that.

In toto, the speech added up to a massive plea for the program he has submitted to Congress, including his proposed $10 billion net tax cut, spread over three years.

As for the average family man in "Random Village," Kennedy said, the cut would reduce his federal taxes about 20 per cent. The whole community, he said, "will benefit even more from the stimulation in jobs and personal income that the tax cut will give to the nation."

"The federal government is the people—and the budget is a reflection of their needs," Kennedy said. He said that to cut a dollar of expenditures for every dollar cut in taxes would remove with one hand the stimulus given with the other.

"Let us understand, then," the President said, "that every dollar cut in federal expenditures cuts even more from our gross national product. A cut of $5 billion now from the proposed federal budget, as many have suggested, would cause one million fewer jobs by the end of the fiscal year. It would offset all the benefits which the tax cut would have brought by then."

"And if that lower level of expenditures were maintained thereafter, it would eventually cause, not only a recession, but an even greater budgetary loss in revenue than the amount supposedly saved."

Kennedy was repeating here familiar arguments he has laid out.

Mr. Magoo Given Full U.S. Pardon

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Mr. Magoo the mongoose, is receiving a full pardon and thus can continue as the furry favorite of Duluth Zoo visitors as long as he lives.

Because of a law banning his ilk from the United States, Magoo had been slated for the heave-ho May 1 by the Department of Interior.

But Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall said Thursday that Magoo's visitor's visa was being extended indefinitely.

The mongoose, a snake fighter in India, is also a prolific reproducer and can become a ravaging menace. But there's no mate for magoo and hence no danger.

Ohio Assured Another Batch Of Highway Improvements

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio will be building another big batch of roads in the next two years.

That became certain Thursday when the Senate passed unanimously a House - approved bill appropriating nearly $750 million to build:

One-hundred and forty miles of interstate highways, 44 miles of major urban highways, 170 miles of primary roads, 140 miles of secondary roads and 2,000 miles of resurfacing present highways.

There are a few minor items to clean up before the bill reaches the desk of Gov. James A. Rhodes for his signature. One is House approval of a Senate amendment to pay up nearly $10 million in back money due the Public Employees Retirement System by both the Highway and the Highway Safety departments.

The Senate also passed unanimously and returned to the House for concurrence in amendments a bill appropriating more than $28 million for operating the Highway Safety Department—including the Highway Patrol—for the next two years.

A third appropriation bill, the biggest of all, still is under study by the House Finance Committee which expects to be able to have it ready for the House floor in another two weeks. It is the general budget bill calling for nearly $13 billion to operate the state for the next two years. When the House finishes with it, the Senate expects to take another month to give the big money bill another fine-tooth-comb treatment.

If the general appropriations bill can be sent to the governor's desk by early June, the legislative session probably will end soon there.

The two houses have named their representatives to a joint conference committee which will try to iron out differences on a bill to create a state board of regents to coordinate higher education in Ohio. Senators named to the committee are Education Chairman Ross Peppie, R-Allen; Oakley Collins, R-Lawrence; and Oliver Ocasak, D-Summit. House members are Majority Whip Harry Jump, R - Huron; Education Chairman Robert Longworth, R-Carroll; and Wray Bevins, D-Pike.

The House went along unanimously with a Senate - approved

Argentina Nips Another Plot

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Military chiefs indicated Thursday night they had nipped another power bid by navy and civilian rebels who staged an abortive revolt April 2.

The armed forces and the interior ministry headed by Gen. Enrique Rauch reaffirmed their pledge to hold presidential elections scheduled for June 23. The public regarded the promises of balloting with apathy and skepticism.

The military remained on the alert, and tension continued to hang over Buenos Aires. Armed patrols roamed downtown streets as they have for the past three nights. There were unconfirmed reports that tank and anti-aircraft units had been ordered to bases near the capital.

A defense ministry communiqué said the latest plot was being formed by a small minority involved in psychological warfare to offset their previous defeat.

Italy Approves 40 Pct. Hike In Medic Fees

ROME (AP)—Government mediation ended today a week-long boycott of medical insurance agencies by 45,000 Italian doctors. The doctors' non-cooperation strike provoked demonstrations that turned into riots in the city of Taranto.

Negotiators agreed on an immediate 40 per cent increase in fees for the doctors and negotiations to revise fee schedules and simplify the insurance forms the doctors must fill out.

Labor Minister Virginio Bertinelli met with the negotiators for the final six hours of talks.

Eighty per cent of Italy's 50 million people, including almost the entire labor force, is covered by some kind of health insurance. In addition to wanting more money, the doctors said the forms they had to fill out for the agencies were too involved and time consuming.

The doctors averaged 300 lire (48 cents) for an office visit and double that for a house call. Originally they asked $2.40 for an office treatment and $4.80 for a house call.

To press their demands, doctors first refused to fill in most of the blanks. Then they treated patients only for cash and refused to send in the insurance forms at all.

But, in words aimed obviously at Republican critics who have been calling for reductions of up to $15 billion in his $100 billion budget, Kennedy said:

"But I am saying that carefully screened and selected federal expenditure programs can play a useful role, both singly and in combination that to cut $5 billion to $10 billion from the proposed budget would harm both the nation and the typical neighborhood in it; and that the right way to a balanced budget is to seek first a balanced economy. The tax cuts I have proposed, and the level of expenditures I have proposed, have been carefully fitted together with that chief objective in mind."

For the most part, the speech dealt with economics at home. Kennedy drew a picture of a typical American community he called "Random Village," and told at length how it is affected by activities of the federal government.

But the President also referred at the outset to the Cuban invasion fiasco of two years ago and the handling of the Cuban crisis of last October, and he said that "there is today more widespread assurance that both peace and freedom can prevail."

He added that, while vigilance cannot be relaxed, there is a tendency among many newspaper readers and writers to devote more attention to the domestic scene. So he, too, concentrated on that.

In toto, the speech added up to a massive plea for the program he has submitted to Congress, including his proposed $10 billion net tax cut, spread over three years.

As for the average family man in "Random Village," Kennedy said, the cut would reduce his federal taxes about 20 per cent. The whole community, he said, "will benefit even more from the stimulation in jobs and personal income that the tax cut will give to the nation."

"The federal government is the people—and the budget is a reflection of their needs," Kennedy said. He said that to cut a dollar of expenditures for every dollar cut in taxes would remove with one hand the stimulus given with the other.

"Let us understand, then," the President said, "that every dollar cut in federal expenditures cuts even more from our gross national product. A cut of $5 billion now from the proposed federal budget, as many have suggested, would cause one million fewer jobs by the end of the fiscal year. It would offset all the benefits which the tax cut would have brought by then."

Kennedy was repeating here familiar arguments he has laid out before.

Mr. Magoo Given Full U.S. Pardon

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Mr. Magoo the mongoose, is receiving a full pardon and thus can continue as the furry favorite of Duluth Zoo visitors as long as he lives.

Because of a law banning his ilk from the United States, Magoo had been slated for the heave-ho May 1 by the Department of Interior.

But Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall said Thursday that Magoo's visitor's visa was being extended indefinitely.

The mongoose, a snake fighter in India, is also a prolific reproducer and can become a ravaging menace. But there's no mate for magoo and hence no danger.

Manufacturers Curb Markups

Hike in Steel Prices Studied by Users

NEW YORK (AP)—Few manufacturers of steel-using items plan early markups on their products as a result of the selective price increases by steelmaking suppliers.

Most of them still are mulling over the situation or seeking more information, a spot check by The Associated Press across the country showed today.

The construction industry appeared a possible exception. J. J. Buckley, executive vice president of the Youngstown Steel Door Co., estimated the steel price rise will cause an increase of about two per cent in his company's prices.

In New Brunswick, N.J., Triangle Conduit & Cable Co. served notice of an indirect price rise on steel conduit used to enclose electrical wiring in buildings.

In Atlanta, Georgia's Highway Department director, Jim Gillis, said "the steel price increase will mean fewer bridges. We have just so much money."

Automakers, who use about a ton of steel per vehicle, had nothing to say but informed estimates placed the increase in manufacturing costs attributable to the steel price rise at from $25 to $50 per car.

Sources in Detroit said they expect no change in price tags on 1963 models. What will happen when 1964 models start rolling this fall is a matter of speculation, they said.

In Chicago and elsewhere, some big appliance makers said they are studying the situation and have reached no decisions.

North American Aviation's Columbus, Ohio division was one of several companies reporting sizable steel reserves on hand, but a spokesman said he didn't foresee much effect even after reserves are used up.

Father of 9 Rescued from Ditch Cavein

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—In his 49 years, the sweetest sound Robert Kelly ever heard was "Hold on, old buddy, we've almost got you."

For more than an hour Thursday, the father of nine was buried beneath 7 or 8 feet of soft, dry clay in a caved-in ditch.

Firemen dug frantically with shovels and their bare hands in 80-degree weather.

Three feet below the earth, dynamite charges had been set in an adjoining ditch to dislodge rock. There was a risk they might go off.

"It was a miracle that he found some air to breathe for more than an hour," said Fire Chief John Krusenklau.

When the diggers uncovered Kelly's head, he mumbled weakly and barely nodded. They placed a fireman's helmet on his head and fed him oxygen.

A few feet away, rescuers concentrated on removing Gene Whitaker, 41. Whitaker was dead of internal injuries when he reached a hospital.

A third worker, Drane Schriver, 57, was buried to his shoulders. Firemen moved him shortly after answering the alarm.

Ohio Assured Another Batch Of Highway Improvements

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio will be building another big batch of roads in the next two years.

That became certain Thursday when the Senate passed unanimously a House-approved bill appropriating nearly $750 million to build:

One-hundred and forty miles of Interstate highways, 44 miles of major urban highways 170 miles of primary roads, 140 miles of secondary roads and 2,000 miles of resurfacing present highways.

There are a few minor items to clean up before the bill reaches the desk of Gov. James A. Rhodes for his signature. One is House approval of a Senate amendment to pay up nearly $10 million in back money due the Public Employees Retirement System by both the Highway and the Highway Safety departments.

The Senate also passed unanimously and returned to the House for concurrence in amendments a bill appropriating more than $28 million for operating the Highway Safety Department—including the Highway Patrol—for the next two years.

A third appropriation bill, the biggest of all, still is under study by the House Finance Committee which expects to be able to have it ready for the House floor in another two weeks. It is the general budget bill calling for nearly $1.3 billion to operate the state for the next two years. When the House finishes with it, the Senate expects to take another month to give the big money bill another fine-tooth-comb treatment.

If the general appropriations bill can be sent to the governor's desk by early June, the legislative session probably will end soon thereafter. The two houses have named their representatives to a joint conference committee which will try to iron out differences on a bill to create a state board of regents to coordinate higher education in Ohio. Senators named to the committee are Education Chairman Ross Pepple, R-Allen; Oakley Collins, R-Lawrence, and Oliver Ocasek, D-Summit. House members are Majority Whip Harry Jump, R - Huron; Education Chairman Robert Longworth, R-Carroll, and Wray Bevins, D-Pike.

Once Around Roundtown

ON THE JOB. The city's street sweeper was in full service bright and early today, just as it has been each day this week.

The service department has set up a scheduled program for a spring cleaning of local streets. The work is being done street-by-street and will continue the next several days until completed. Driver Orville Jacobs is handling the sweeper machine.

A SUGGESTION was made today by an "outsider" to clean-up, paint and light the tower on the City Building.

Dane Ellis, a Ross County historian and former teacher, said Circleville should take great pride in the unique tower. It would be an asset to the community, he said, if it were painted and lighted with flood lamps at night.

FINAL touches are being added to the First National Bank's new building at Court and Main Sts. Evergreen shrubbery now decks the areas that have been bare since construction was completed. The J. S. Goode Nursery, Route 4 was completing the project today.

Italy Approves 40 Pct. Hike In Medic Fees

ROME (AP)—Government mediation ended today a week-old boycott of medical insurance agencies by 45,000 Italian doctors. The doctors' non-cooperation strike provoked demonstrations that turned into riots in the city of Taranto.

Negotiators agreed on an immediate 40 per cent increase in fees for the doctors and negotiations to revise fee schedules and simplify the insurance forms the doctors must fill out.

Labor Minister Virginio Bertinelli met with the negotiators for the final six hours of talks.

Eighty per cent of Italy's 50 million people, including almost the entire labor force, is covered by some kind of health insurance. In addition to wanting more money, the doctors said the forms they had to fill out for the agencies were too involved and time consuming.

The doctors averaged 300 lire (48 cents) for an office visit and double that for a house call. Originally they asked $2.40 for an office treatment and $4.80 for a house call.

To press their demands, doctors first refused to fill in most of the blanks. Then they treated patients only for cash and refused to send in the insurance forms at all.

Hocking Valley Bank Of Athens Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Approval for the organization of a new state bank at Athens, to join the 346 state banks presently operating in Ohio, has been granted by Superintendent of Banks Clarence C. Luft.

Luft said the new state bank will be known as the Hocking Valley Bank of Athens.

New Machines Vital Aid in Sewer Cleaning

A set of gasoline powered bucket machines, recently purchased by the city and used to clean out sewer lines, has drawn the praise from the Circleville Service Department.

The bucket equipment was purchased by the Water Department, but is operated by the Service Department.

Service Director Ronald Sharrett said the new equipment, in conjunction with the rod machine already owned by the city, cleans both sanitary and storm sewers. He said roots and all other deposited material are removed from the lines.

The machines essentially consist of a bucket with a cable attached. The bucket is pulled through the line from manhole to manhole.

ACCORDING to Sharrett, a program is being initiated for cleaning the city's entire sanitary sewer system. But he said it will take several years to complete the project.

Once the system is cleaned, the service director added, the city's maintenance cost should be decreased to a very small amount compared to what has been spent in the past for such work.

The bucket gear has already been used in areas where root trouble has developed. Sharrett said these lines were cleaned and now can be used to full capacity.

Tax Collections Are $7,502 in Pickaway County

Sales tax collections for the first two weeks of April in Pickaway County totaled $7,502.66, according to a report from John D. Herbert, treasurer of state.

Tax collections for a similar period a year ago were nearly double at $13,439.36. However, collections for the year are well ahead of collections for the previous year.

A total of $223,522.63 has been turned in for the current fiscal year, compared to $212,851.61 one year ago.

Motor vehicle taxes continued their climb in the county with a two week collection of $9,504.19 reported, bringing the yearly total to $164,928.82. For the same period during the past fiscal year, $136,725.64 was collected.

The fiscal year for the state begins July 1.

State Patrolmen Aid Bloodmobile Visit Yields 104 Pints

WILLIAM SIX

Twelve State Highway Patrolmen of Circleville Post No 65 donated blood yesterday during a regular visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile at the First Methodist Church.

A total of 104 pints were collected, with 152 persons reporting as donors. Forty-eight were rejected for various medical reasons.

The patrolmen made donations as replacements for blood used by fellow patrolman Victor Ralston during a recent serious illness. Ralston, himself, is a regular blood donor.

Robert Johnson, blood program chairman, today expressed his thanks to those who participated in making the Bloodmobile visit a success.

NEW one gallon donors are Robert Francis, Don Gaines, Willard Yaple, Donald McDill and Charles Leader. Two donors became members of the two-gallon club. They are William Six and Ross Spalding.

Handling registrations were Mrs. B. B. Defenbaugh, Miss Florence Reed, Mrs. Lewis Dean, Mrs. Charles Walker, Mrs. Howard Huston and Mrs. Montford Kirkwood.

Mrs. Walter Ehmling and Mrs. Maxine Currier were in charge of taking temperatures. Nurses on duty were Mrs. Robert Denman, Mrs. Charles Walters, Mrs. William Camp, Mrs. Arthur Bowman, Mrs. John Byers, Mrs. Donald V. Archer, Mrs. Robert G. Smith and Mrs. C. C. Schwarz.

Doctors contributing their time and services were Ray Carroll, J. M. Hedges, Robert McCoy, E. L. Montgomery, Frank Moore and E. S. Shane.

Donors were:

New Hampshire Sweepstakes OK'd To Provide School Fund

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The Granite State—New Hampshire—long a bastion of Yankee conservatism, appears on the verge of taking a gamble on a sweepstakes to boost state revenues.

Both houses of the Republican-controlled legislature have passed the controversial bill establishing a state-operated sweepstakes. Sometime next week, the House, which passed the bill by a 215-151 vote Thursday, will send the measure to Governor John W. King.

If King does not veto the bill, it automatically becomes law five legislative days after reaching his desk.

The law would make New Hampshire the only state in the nation operating a sweepstakes.

The first Democrat elected governor of New Hampshire in 40 years, King has refused to say what he will do, but he has told questioners that he voted for sweepstakes bills twice while in the legislature.

The sweepstakes is expected to bring in $4 million annually, all of which would be earmarked for schools.

It would be based on two races a year at Rockingham Park, New Hampshire's only flat racing track. Tickets would be sold only at state liquor stores and at windows at Rockingham and other tracks.

The tickets would not be sold outside the state. Opponents suggest it might be illegal to transport tickets or notify winners across state lines.

The bill calls for establishment of a three-man commission to run the sweepstakes, set the size of race purses, the amount of money to be passed out in prizes, and the price of the tickets.

The bill sets a limit of $3 for the price of the tickets.

Part of Republic Steel Price Hike Ordered Rescinded

CLEVELAND (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. said today it has rescinded its price increase of $4.50 a ton on steel plates, which was among the selective price hikes announced by the firm Monday.

Other increases — averaging $5.34 a ton on some carbon steel products — announced by the nation's third largest steel producer remain in effect, Republic said.

A company spokesman said the increase on plates was rescinded in order to strengthen the firm's competitive position in that field.

He pointed out that other major producers of steel plates did not include that product in their selective price hikes announced later "and obviously we couldn't sell many plates at a $4.50 increase."

Library Slates Annual 'Free Day'

Annual Free Day will be observed at the Pickaway County Public Library in conjunction with National Library Week, April 21-27 according to Mrs. Enid Denham, librarian.

All overdue books may be returned to the library Wednesday free of penalty.

May 9 the Bookmobile will begin Free Day, which will be continued daily for three weeks so that all schools scheduled may participate.

Changes of most key stocks were fractional. Speculative demand rotated to a scattering of selected issues and away from the groups favored earlier in the week.

Wall Street anticipated little market impact from President Kennedy's speech being made this afternoon.

Savings-and-loan holding companies, although some tended to ease, showed no sharp reaction to news of lower mortgage interest rates which would pinch their profits.

Big Three motors gained moderately. Some of the aerospace issues, airlines, steels and office equipments made progress.

JFK Believes

down before. A $15 billion budget cut, Kennedy repeated, would cripple the nation's defenses, make it permanently second-best in space, and "virtually turn the clock back in every American community."

Every million dollars in the budget, he said, makes possible efforts in hundreds of communities for such programs as curing cancer, curbing narcotics, building libraries, extending mail service, or feeding hungry children.

The President recited many of the items he wants from Congress in the fields of education, health, help for the aged, housing, welfare programs, job retraining programs, water pollution, and efforts to end racial discrimination.

"In short," he summed up, "the federal government is not so remote and our new legislative proposals are not so radical. Nor is the domestic budget, as some times pictured, a catalogue of bureaucratic waste."

"It is an effort to meet those needs of the individual, the family and the community which can best be met by the nationwide cooperation of all, and which cannot be met by state and local governments."

"These needs must be met—and to take them out of the federal budget will only cast them on state and local governments, whose expenditures, debt and payoffs have all increased many times faster than those of the federal government. In fact, were it not for federal aid to hard-pressed state and local governments, the federal cash budget today would be in balance."

"Yet somehow 'federal spending' has become a frightening term. People do not stop to realize that it stands for weather bureau and meat inspection and school lunches and national parks and airport control towers and all the other aspects of our daily life that we could not do without."

Kennedy acknowledged that there will be debate as to details of his tax and spending plans, and differences over dimension and degree. But he proposed to the editors "getting on with the main task of strengthening the American nation—of opening a road on which our children can travel—of making the most of the riches we have."

"Let us get on," he urged, "with the business of government, and the business of reporting on the government, and the business of appraising the government, with a devotion to truth and perspective. I ask you to criticize us when we are wrong. Perhaps applaud us when we are right. Warn us when we are in danger. But, above all, let us get on."

Kennedy said that his legislative slate for the domestic scene contains fewer than 30 top-priority measures and isn't expensive. Wiping them out entirely, he said, would lower next year's prospective $12 billion deficit by less than $2 billion.

Young Bike Rider Slightly Injured

A young rider was slightly injured at 4:30 p. m. yesterday when his bicycle collided with a pickup truck at the first alley east of Pickaway St. at E. Main.

Suffering a scratch on the right elbow and abrasions of the left hip was Richard McLaughlin, 10, of 119 S. Washington St. Police said hospital treatment was not required.

The truck was driven by Mildred Vance, 46, Route 3. The only damage in the mishap was a bent seat on the bike, officers said.

According to police, young McLaughlin saw the truck approaching, but his foot slipped off the brake pedal when he attempted to stop.

New Machines Vital Aid in Sewer Cleaning

A set of gasoline powered bucket machines, recently purchased by the city and used to clean out sewer lines, has drawn the praise from the Circleville Service Department.

The bucket equipment was purchased by the Water Department, but is operated by the Service Department.

Service Director Ronald Sharrett said the new equipment, in conjunction with the rod machine already owned by the city, cleans both sanitary and storm sewers. He said roots and all other deposited material are removed from the lines.

The machines essentially consist of a bucket with a cable attached. The bucket is pulled through the line from manhole to manhole.

According to Sharrett, a program is being initiated for cleaning the city's entire sanitary sewer system. But he said it will take several years to complete the project.

Once the system is cleaned the service director added, the city's maintenance cost should be decreased to a very small amount compared to what has been spent in the past for such work.

The bucket gear has already been used in areas where root trouble has developed. Sharrett said these lines were cleaned and now can be used to full capacity.

SALES tax collections for the first two weeks of April in Pickaway County totaled $7,502.66, according to a report from John D. Herbert, treasurer of state.

Tax collections for a similar period a year ago were nearly double at $13,439.36. However, collections for the year are well ahead of collections for the previous year.

A total of $223,522.63 has been turned in for the current fiscal year, compared to $212,85.16 one year ago.

Motor vehicle taxes continued their climb in the county with a two week collection of $9,504.19 reported, bringing the yearly total to $164,928.82. For the same period during the past fiscal year, $136,725.64 was collected.

The fiscal year for the state begins July 1.

State Patrolmen Aid

Bloodmobile Visit Yields 104 Pints

ROSS SPALDING

Twelve State Highway Patrolmen of Circleville Post No 65 donated blood yesterday during a regular visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile at the First Methodist Church.

A total of 104 pints were collected, with 152 persons reporting as donors. Forty-eight were rejected for various medical reasons.

The patrolmen made donations as replacements for blood used by fellow patrolman Victor Ralston during a recent serious illness. Ralston, himself, is a regular blood donor.

Robert Johnson, blood program chairman, today expressed his thanks to those who participated in making the Bloodmobile visit a success.

NEW one gallon donors are Robert Francis, Don Gaines, Willard Yapple, Donald McDill and Charles Leader. Two donors became members of the two-gallon club. They are William Six and Ross Spalding.

Handling registrations were Mrs. B. B. Defenbaugh, Miss Florence Reed, Mrs. Lewis Dean, Mrs. Charles Walker, Mrs. Howard Huston and Mrs. Montford Kirkwood.

Mrs. Walter Ehmling and Mrs. Maxine Currier were in charge of taking temperatures.

Nurses on duty were Mrs. Robert Denman, Mrs. Charles Walters, Mrs. William Camp, Mrs. Arthur Bowman, Mrs. John Byers, Mrs. Donald V. Archer, Mrs. Robert G. Smith and Mrs. C. C. Schwarz. Doctors contributing their time and services were Ray Carroll, J. M. Hedges, Robert McCoy, E. L. Montgomery, Frank Moore and E. S. Shane.

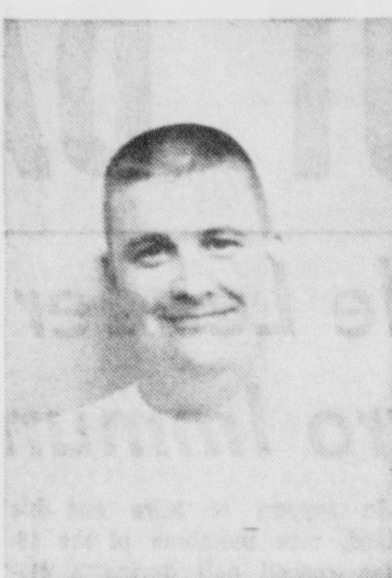

Donors were:

New Hampshire Sweepstakes OK'd To Provide School Fund

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The Granite State—New Hampshire—long a bastion of Yankee conservatism, appears on the verge of taking a gamble on a sweepstakes to boost state revenues.

Both houses of the Republican-controlled legislature have passed the controversial bill establishing a state-operated sweepstakes. Sometime next week, the House, which passed the bill by a 215-151 vote Thursday, will send the measure to Democratic Gov. John W. King.

If King does not veto the bill, it automatically becomes law five legislative days after reaching his desk.

The law would make New Hampshire the only state in the nation operating a sweepstakes.

The first Democrat elected governor of New Hampshire in 40 years, King has refused to say what he will do, but he has told questioners that he voted for sweepstakes bills twice while in the legislature.

The sweepstakes is expected to bring in $4 million annually, all of which would be earmarked for schools.

It would be based on two races a year at Rockingham Park, New Hampshire's only flat racing track. Tickets would be sold only at state liquor stores and at windows at Rockingham and other tracks.

The tickets would not be sold outside the state. Opponents suggest it might be illegal to transport tickets or notify winners across state lines.

The bill sets a limit of $3 for the price of the tickets.

Part of Republic Steel Price Hike Ordered Rescinded

CLEVELAND (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. said today it has rescinded its price increase of $4.50 a ton on steel plates, which was among the selective price hikes announced by the firm Monday.

Other increases — averaging $5.34 a ton on some carbon steel products — announced by the nation's third largest steel producer remain in effect, Republic said.

A company spokesman said the increase on plates was rescinded in order to strengthen the firm's competitive position in that field.

U.S. Steps Up Cuban Patrol

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. patrol planes and ships have intensified their watchfulness over Caribbean waters between Cuba and Central and South America, it was learned today.

These patrols, including some aircraft operating out of the Panama Canal Zone, keep tabs on all cargo and passenger type ships outbound from Cuba.

Of particular interests are 18 Soviet built trawlers believed operated by the Cubans. The Navy makes it its business to know where these are at all times.

When it is determined a ship may be heading for Latin America, the government concerned is notified. Thus, that government would be in position to send its own naval forces to halt any vessel suspected of carrying arms or men—or to ask for U.S. aid.

The Navy is especially alert for any concentrations of shipping in Cuban harbors, indicating an armed expedition might be gathering.

Authorities feel it would be virtually impossible for any kind of a serious military threat to be mounted from Cuba without being spotted in plenty of time to be intercepted.

The major problem lies in halting any Cuban subversives who might be trickled into Latin America aboard small craft.

There are literally thousands of fishing boats roaming the Caribbean and it is beyond Navy resources to check on all or even the bulk of them, sources said.

There is mounting evidence that the fleet and U.S. air elements arrayed in the Caribbean area would take forceful action if Fidel Castro's Soviet-equipped forces, with or without the help of Soviet troops in Cuba, made any overt move against Central or South America.

JFK Believes

A $15 billion budget cut, Kennedy repeated, would cripple the nation's defenses, make it permanently second-best in space, and "virtually turn the clock back in every American community."

Every million dollars in the budget, he said, makes possible efforts in hundreds of communities for such programs as curing cancer, curbing narcotics, building libraries, extending mail service, or feeding hungry children.

The President recited many of the items he wants from Congress in the fields of education, health, help for the aged, housing, welfare programs, job retraining programs, water pollution, and efforts to end racial discrimination.

"In short," he summed up, "the federal government is not so remote and our new legislative proposals are not so radical. Nor is the domestic budget, as some times pictured, a catalogue of bureaucratic waste."

"It is an effort to meet those needs of the individual, the family and the community which can best be met by the nationwide cooperation of all, and which cannot be met by state and local governments."

"These needs must be met—and to take them out of the federal budget will only cast them on state and local governments, whose expenditures, debt and payrolls have all increased many times faster than those of the federal government. In fact, were it not for federal aid to hard-pressed state and local governments, the federal cash budget today would be in balance."

"Yet somehow 'federal spending' has become a frightening term. People do not stop to realize that it stands for weather bureau and meat inspection and school lunches and national parks and airport control towers and all the other aspects of our daily life that we could not do without."

Kennedy acknowledged that there will be debate as to details of his tax and spending plans, and differences over dimension and degree. But he proposed to the editors "getting on with the main task of strengthening the American nation—of opening a road on which our children can travel—of making the most of the riches we have."

"Let us get on," he urged, "with the business of government, and the business of reporting on the government, and the business of appraising the government, with a devotion to truth and perspective. I ask you to criticize us when we are wrong. Perhaps applaud us when we are right. Warn us when we are in danger. But, above all, let us get on."

Kennedy said that his legislative slate for the domestic scene contains fewer than 30 top-priority measures and isn't expensive. Wiping them out entirely, he said, would lower next year's prospective $12 billion deficit by less than $2 billion.

Margie Hardbarger vs. Walter Hardbarger, Route 1, Ashville REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

Miro Condemns Kennedy Policy

The White House said there would be no comment. Miro had delivered a copy of his document to the State Department, which called it "highly inaccurate and distorted." Miro said the State Department attack forced him to make his document public.

"Experts on Latin America" are not aware of the disaster overtaking the whole continent," Miro said. "They assure us that the panacea for all the social ills of our countries lies in the Alliance for Progress program."

The success of that program, he contended, "will depend on the eradication of the Communist regime in Cuba."

Replying to contentions that an invasion of Cuba might lead to a nuclear holocaust, Miro argued that Khrushchev "would not provoke an armed conflict" because Cuba is outside the Soviet zone of influence.

"Permanent revolution is his goal," Miro said. "Venezuela is already up in arms by Castro's order. Colombia is torn by Castro's order. Argentina is beset by constant convulsions and the Marxist ferment in all the rest of the nations is the terrifying forerunner of catastrophe yet to come."

"Dominated by the specter of uncertainty and with my confidence lost in the fulfillment of promised securities," Miro told the council, "I cannot continue in the leadership position."

As he walked out, one Cuban rose and shouted:

"Viva Miro. You are the Cuban public."

Miro, 60, a former jurist, said Kennedy gave orders at the April 10, 1962, meeting for massive recruiting of exiles and said that six divisions would be required. "Your destiny is to suffer," Miro said the President told him at the conclusion of the meeting. "Do not weaken. You have my support and I reiterate my earlier pronouncements."

The council made a census of possible fighters, Miro said, and he visited presidents and foreign ministers of Central America and found them "united, proud, in solidarity with Cuba, but defenseless." Meanwhile, he said, Moscow was pouring men and arms into Cuba.

When Kennedy announced the blockade, he said, the Free World responded enthusiastically and countries which had been neutral and indifferent aligned themselves with the United States. "Many of them mobilized their forces."

Tensely, the council stood by, waiting for word from the government. Then, on the afternoon of the 24th, Miro said he was in-

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather outlook:

A cold front and low pressure area moving eastward through the Midwest will cause a strong flow of warm, moist air into Ohio today. Afternoon temperatures will reach the upper 70s and low 80s.

Scattered thunderstorms occurred in the northern counties early today and will become more general over the state, probably ending early tonight.

Cooler air and partly cloudy skies will be general Saturday with afternoon temperatures about 10 degrees lower.

Temperatures at sunrise today ranged from 60 at Youngstown to 71 at Chesapeake. Columbus had an overnight low of 62.

OHIO FIVE DAY FORECASTS

SOUTHERN & CENTRAL OHIO — Temperatures will average six degrees above normal. Normal high 60-68, normal low 44-48. Cooler Saturday, warmer Sunday, little change through Wednesday. Rainfall will average about one-half inch or less in scattered thundershowers tonight, again near mid-week.

GIVEAWAY — Cleopatra (Liz Taylor, here) may turn out to be one of the most charitable women of all time, says 20th Century-Fox, with premiere performances of the film expected to raise about $20 million for charity in some 50 cities in the latter half of June.

John Birch Society Enlarges Staff in Its Home Office

BELMONT, Mass. (AP)—There is a new look about the operations of the John Birch Society.

Nowhere is it more apparent than at the home office in a red brick building near Belmont Center, where Robert Welch, its founder, directs the affairs of a militantly conservative organization.

There is a sharp contrast with the status of the society just two years ago when a sudden surge of criticism reached even the floor of Congress, where there were demands that it be investigated.

The society still occupies half of the ground floor of the building, along with the basement.

But it has expanded its quarters, taking over the basement of an adjoining building.

There were 57 employees in 1961; there are 109 on the payroll now.

Welch is a North Carolina farm boy who after college in his home state went to the U.S. Naval Academy for two years, and to Harvard Law School for another two. Then he went into the candy business and made his fortune in a nationally known firm which bore his name. He retired in 1957 to devote full time to organization of the John Birch Society.

Welch, who decries talk of a new look, says the society isn't a secret one, but holds secret only the number of members and their identities.

No secret, however, is his pride in the circulation of the society's monthly publication, American Opinion, which he places at more than 27,000.

Another development consists of stores across the country which sell the magazine, society pamphlets and books. Most are the exposes of communism, but there is more than liberal sprinkling of economics writings.

Hungarian, Austrian Cardinals Talk

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Austria has met with the Hungarian primate, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, in the U.S. legation in Budapest, Msgr. Endre Hamvas, head of the Hungarian Bench of Bishops said.

Cardinal Koenig is believed to be on a papal mission to persuade Cardinal Mindszenty to quit his exile in the U.S. legation and go to Rome.

A spokesman at the U.S. legation said the two cardinals met for four hours, but declined to give any further information.

Cardinal Mindszenty has been in the U.S. legation in Budapest since Russians crushed the 1956 Hungarian revolution. Before that he had been imprisoned by Hungary's Communist government on treason charges.

Cardinal Mindszenty has said he would never leave his flock in Hungary, even if it meant long imprisonment. The Hungarians are said to be anxious to get him out of the country.

Miro Condemns Kennedy Policy

The White House said there would be no comment. Miro had delivered a copy of his document to the State Department, which called it "highly inaccurate and distorted." Miro said the State Department attack forced him to make his document public.

"Experts on Latin America" are not aware of the disaster overtaking the whole continent," Miro said. "They assure us that the panacea for all the social ills of our countries lies in the Alliance for Progress program."

The success of that program, he contended, "will depend on the eradication of the Communist regime in Cuba."

Replying to contentions that an invasion of Cuba might lead to a nuclear holocaust, Miro argued that Khrushchev "would not provoke an armed conflict" because Cuba is outside the Soviet zone of influence.

"Permanent revolution is his goal," Miro said. "Venezuela is already up in arms by Castro's order. Colombia is torn by Castro's order. Argentina is beset by constant convulsions and the Marxist ferment in all the rest of the nations is the terrifying forerunner of catastrophe yet to come."

"Dominant by the specter of uncertainty and with my confidence lost in the fulfillment of promised securities," Miro told the council, "I cannot continue in the leadership position."

As he walked out, one Cuban rose and shouted:

"Viva Miro. You are the Cuban people."

Miro, 60, a former jurist, said Kennedy gave orders at the April 10, 1962, meeting for massive recruiting of exiles and said that six divisions would be required.

"Your destiny is to suffer," Miro said the President told him at the conclusion of the meeting. "Do not weaken. You have my support and I reiterate my earlier pronouncements."

The council made a census of possible fighters, Miro said, and he visited presidents and foreign ministers of Central America and found them "united, proud, in solidarity with Cuba, but defenseless." Meanwhile, he said, Moscow was pouring men and arms into Cuba.

When Kennedy announced the blockade, he said, the Free World responded enthusiastically and countries which had been neutral and indifferent aligned themselves with the United States. "Many of them mobilized their forces."

Tensely, the council stood by, waiting for word from the government. Then, on the afternoon of the 24th, Miro said he was in-

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather outlook:

A cold front and low pressure area moving eastward through the Midwest will cause a strong flow of warm, moist air into Ohio today. Afternoon temperatures will reach the upper 70s and low 80s.

Scattered thunderstorms occurred in the northern counties early today and will become more general over the state, probably ending early tonight.

Cooler air and partly cloudy skies will be general Saturday with afternoon temperatures about 10 degrees lower.

OHIO FIVE DAY FORECASTS

SOUTHERN & CENTRAL OHIO — Temperatures will average six degrees above normal. Normal high 60-68, normal low 44-48. Cooler Saturday, warmer Sunday, little change through Wednesday. Rainfall will average about one-half inch or less in scattered thundershowers tonight, again near mid-week.

GIVEAWAY — Cleopatra (Liz Taylor, here) may turn out to be one of the most charitable women of all time, says 20th Century-Fox, with premiere performances of the film expected to raise about $20 million for charity in some 50 cities in the latter half of June.

John Birch Society Enlarges Staff in Its Home Office

BELMONT, Mass. (AP)—There is a new look about the operations of the John Birch Society.

Nowhere is it more apparent than at the home office in a red brick building near Belmont Center, where Robert Welch, its founder, directs the affairs of the militantly conservative organization.

There is a sharp contrast with the status of the society just two years ago when a sudden surge of criticism reached even the floor of Congress, where there were demands that it be investigated.

The society still occupies half of the ground floor of the building, along with the basement.

But it has expanded its quarters, taking over the basement of an adjoining building.

There were 57 employees in 1961; there are 109 on the payroll now.

Welch is a North Carolina farm boy who after college in his home state went to the U.S. Naval Academy for two years, and to Harvard Law School for another two. Then he went into the candy business and made his fortune in a nationally known firm which bore his name. He retired in 1957 to devote full time to organization of the John Birch Society.

Welch, who decries talk of a new look, says the society isn't a secret one, but holds secret only the number of members and their identities.

No secret, however, is his pride in the circulation of the society's monthly publication, American Opinion, which he places at more than 27,000.

Another development consists of stores across the country which sell the magazine, society pamphlets and books. Most are the exposes of communism, but there is more than liberal sprinkling of economics writings.

Wider Doors for Grads

A survey shows that jobs at good pay will be more abundant for college graduates this year than at any previous time. Corporations and smaller firms have talent scouts looking over the graduate crop. At many schools graduates who have specialized in one skill have a choice of offers. They are being courted in a manner resembling the wooing of the high school football phenomenon by college coaches.

One observation is that some scouts rate personality higher than proficiency in studies. If a graduate has personality and a Phi Beta Kappa Key, all the better. But merely being straight A student will not always win an invitation to the cream of the jobs.

Non-Divisive Republican

The law may be unwritten, but it holds: a political party, to become nationally successful, must choose its least divisive Presidential candidate. And it follows from this law that a president, once he has won through to office, will not go on winning unless he can hold together the factions that have united to elect him.

The history of our Presidential politics is littered with the figurative corpses of those who have not pondered the unwritten law. In 1944 Wendell Willkie made his appeal in the primaries to the so-called "independents." He did it in such a way that the Republican stalwarts were offended — and Thomas Dewey got the nod. In an older day Stephen A. Douglas, the leading statesman of the Democratic Party, drove a wedge between northern and southern wings of his party — and Abraham Lincoln, the candidate of the minority Republicans, capitalized on the rift.

In 1960 John F. Kennedy, a shrewd student of political party history, kept the unwritten law firmly in mind. He asked Lyndon Johnson of Texas to run on his ticket as a Vice Presidential candidate despite the fact that Johnson in his pre-convention campaign had tried to belabor JFK with father Joe Kennedy's record for appeasement in 1940. By his willingness to overlook a slight to the family, John F. Kennedy brought southern and northern Democrats into sufficient harmony to wage a successful campaign.

But this, as things have turned out, was Kennedy's last gesture of conciliation to Southern Democrats. As President he has mortally offended many of them by using federal troops to force the pace of school integration. This has unquestionably loomed the Presidential profile in courage, but it could make JFK a one-term chief executive.

By a curious alchemy the President's divisive action in his own party has worked a miracle that could give the Republicans a winning candidate if they have the wit to capitalize on it. The potential winner is Barry Goldwater.

This, in itself, is one of the oddest things ever to have happened. For taken without reference to southern Democratic disaffection with Kennedy, Goldwater would be the most divisive candidate the Republicans could nominate. First of all, he comes from a state, Arizona, which has only negligible electoral strength. Secondly, he is against the whole impo-

Maybe labora omnia vincit, but the drudge will give that slogan further scrutiny when he sees a popular campus playboy getting a better job.

At any rate, the competition for college graduates is proof that American industry continues to have expanding plans in the fields of research and development that will make this country's economy blossom as it never has before. And it will convince high school students who may be wavering that there is value in college training.

American business is thoroughly sold on educational training and the man or woman who possesses it finds a wider door open than do those with less training.

By John Chamberlain

The New and Fair Deals. In a country that is reasonably affluent, the moderates of both parties seem willing to accept the present level of State Welfareism. And the welfare issue, accordingly, promises to have little effect one way or the other in 1964.

Thus it is that Presidential politics are turning on such things as sectional pride. Or on the foreign policy issue. Goldwater might win the South because, though he believes in integration, he would not wave the bloody shirt or use force bill tactics to impose it at a "non-deliberate speed." Moreover, he appeals to a wide number of people who think it important to get rid of Castroism in the Caribbean sooner rather than later. Finally, he could sweep the northern suburbs because of his stand against compulsion in labor unionism.

All of this makes him the most non-divisive Republican. Kennedy did this for him, and Kennedy may have to take the consequences.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

When a case of hepatitis breaks out, fear of an epidemic tends to dominate the entire community. But almost invariably the fear is out of proportion to the situation.

When hepatitis does occur, public health officials mobilize their remarkable forces and immediately try to track down the source of infection and set up protection for the community.

Hepatitis is an infection of the liver. Viruses, bacteria, exposure to chemicals and certain drugs are only some of the factors that cause it.

Infectious hepatitis was formerly called "catarrhal jaundice," but this term has been discarded in the light of newer understanding of the disease.

The offending virus can enter the body through the mouth in food or water. It can also be inadvertently injected into the muscles or the blood stream with a needle that carries the virus.

Contamination is the key word to this disease.

Even though water is constantly under scrutiny by public health authorities, the virus occasionally is in it. Needles and syringes, although carefully sterilized, sometimes harbor the virus.

Blood that contains the virus when used for a transfusion is sometimes responsible. Rigid precautions against this have been instituted by carefully screening all blood donors.

Because the incubation period of hepatitis varies, the exact origin is sometimes difficult to trace.

The disease seems to affect young adults and children chiefly. Immunity to hepatitis seems to develop as one approaches middle age. Gamma Globulin, when injected shortly after a suspected exposure to hepatitis, may prevent the disease or modify its severity.

The first stage of the illness is loss of appetite, headache, weakness and a fever of about 101 degrees F. Like so many other diseases, these symptoms are not in themselves distinctive enough for self-diagnosis.

Within seven to ten days there may be the first appearance of a dark brown color to the urine. Now a distinguishing phase of hepatitis may begin.

The yellowish discoloration of the skin and the eyes is unmistakably jaundice. Studies of the blood indicate the severity of the disease.

Then the jaundice begins to disappear and slowly the strength and vitality return. Usually, the aftermath of infectious hepatitis may last as long as three or four months.

The treatment is rest. Alcohol is strictly forbidden. The antibiotics are used sparingly except for possible complications that may arise. Cortisone and ACTH are used only with great deliberation.

Infectious hepatitis occupies round-the-clock interest of scientists, physicians and health officials. The National Institutes of Health combine all the talents from every scientific specialty to uncover the origin and to control the spread of hepatitis. They have great hope that immunization against hepatitis by vaccination will soon be a reality.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN CASEY STENGEL was still piloting the New York Yankees world championship baseball team, he went to the Stadium very early one day to study the condition of the turf after a severe all-night rain. Nobody was in sight, but the ground crew—twenty or thirty men in green overalls, raking the infield and putting fresh white lime on the foul lines. Out of nowhere a couple of stout old ladies appeared upon the field. One of them tapped Casey on the arm and asked, "Do you happen to know which one of these men is Mickey Mantle?"

"Now, John," a mother coaxed her 7-year-old son, "you've been horsing around way past your bedtime. It's time to go to sleep." "I just can't, mom," argued John. "My mouth is still full of words."

The insurance adjuster was indignant. "How come," he demanded of the man who had sent for him, "that you didn't call the police the minute you discovered your car had been stolen?" "Well, for one thing," was the answer, "my wife was in it."

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — A spring boom in housing is under way. Building starts are well ahead of last year. The mortgage business is brisk.

Part of the increase in construction is credited to the generally improved economic situation.

Personal incomes are up and more families have the money in hand or in sight to induce them to buy a new home. Industrial production is rising and so are retail sales, both adding to public confidence. And whether it's inflationary, the selective rise in steel prices may lead many who yearn for a new home to feel that the economy is moving again.

Part of the increase in home building is traced to easier credit terms.

Lending institutions have more available funds than a year ago. The competition to put this money to work profitably has led some lenders to grant longer terms on mortgages. This brings in some new buyers who would find it hard to meet tighter terms.

And part of the increased building is credited to the growth of special housing programs, such as those designed for older persons. Their number grows each year. Other housing units under way are traced to a rush to beat changes in zoning and other regulations.

Spring itself, of course, is a basic reason for a spurt right now. Good weather helps the builder, and it kindles the home-owning urge in many breasts.

Add them all up and they spell increased construction in March and April with mortgage applications suggesting a continuance of the boom for some time.

The Census Bureau reports the rate of housing starts rose 17 per cent from February to March in the nation as a whole. The biggest jump was in the Northeast where much of the 68 per cent increase over February was credited to apartment building.

The annual rate in March was 1,494,000 units, the highest since the 1962 peak rate of 1,586,000 set in November. Permits for future construction are running 8 per cent ahead of a year ago.

The Federal Housing Administration reports applications for government insurance on mortgages running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 197,000. The rate at the Veterans Administration is put at 152,000.

Actual building of new housing units last year came to 1,452,000, many regions continued to have building booms, although sales slowed down notably in others.

The Federal Home Loan Bank says that mortgage debt increased more in 1962 than in any previous year. It was up $15.2 billion, or 10 per cent, to a total of $168.3 billion.

Some of the increase, the bank says, was due to larger mortgages and higher selling prices on bigger houses. But it also notes the scramble of lending institutions to put their money to work, which brought in more customers attracted by easier payment terms, lower down payments, or lengthier mortgages.

One observation is that some scouts rate personality higher than proficiency in studies. If a graduate has personality and a Phi Beta Kappa Key, all the better. But merely being straight A student will not always win an invitation to the cream of the jobs.

Non-Divisive Republican

The law may be unwritten, but it holds: a political party, to become nationally successful, must choose its least divisive Presidential candidate. And it follows from this law that a president, once he has won through to office, will not go on winning unless he can hold together the factions that have united to elect him.

The history of our Presidential politics is littered with the figurative corpses of those who have not pondered the unwritten law. In 1944 Wendell Willkie made his appeal in the primaries to the so-called "independents." He did it in such a way that the Republican stalwarts were offended — and Thomas Dewey got the nod. In an older day Stephen A. Douglas, the leading statesman of the Democratic Party, drove a wedge between northern and southern wings of his party — and Abraham Lincoln, the candidate of the minority Republicans, capitalized on the rift.

In 1960 John F. Kennedy, a shrewd student of political party history, kept the unwritten law firmly in mind. He asked Lyndon Johnson of Texas to run on his ticket as a Vice Presidential candidate despite the fact that Johnson in his pre-convention campaign had tried to belabor JFK with father Joe Kennedy's record for appeasement in 1940. By his willingness to overlook a slight to the family, John F. Kennedy brought southern and northern Democrats into sufficient harmony to wage a successful campaign.

But this, as things have turned out, was Kennedy's last gesture of conciliation to Southern Democrats. As President he has mortally offended many of them by using federal troops to force the pace of school integration. This has unquestionably loomed the Presidential profile in courage, but it could make JFK a one-term chief executive.

By a curious alchemy the President's divisive action in his own party has worked a miracle that could give the Republicans a winning candidate if they have the wit to capitalize on it. The potential winner is Barry Goldwater.

This, in itself, is one of the oddest things ever to have happened. For taken without reference to Southern Democratic disaffection with Kennedy, Goldwater would be the most divisive candidate the Republicans could nominate. First of all, he comes from a state, Arizona, which has only negligible, electoral strength. Secondly, he is against the whole impos-

Maybe labora omnia vincit, but the drudge will give that slogan further scrutiny when he sees a popular campus play-boy getting a better job.

At any rate, the competition for college graduates is proof that American industry continues to have expanding plans in the fields of research and development that will make this country's economy blossom as it never has before. And it will convince high school students who may be wavering that there is value in college training.

American business is thoroughly sold on educational training and the man or woman who possesses it finds a wider door open than do those with less training.

By John Chamberlain

ing facade of the Welfare State. On strictly economic grounds he is an Adam Smith laissez faire man trying to get by in the "spend and elect" age of John Maynard Keynes. In short, the ideal candidate for a third party devoted to overturning virtually everything that has happened since 1933. Or so one would have said when Eisenhower was the Republican beau ideal.

The last two years, however, have served to make Goldwater's economic philosophy the least important thing about him insofar as his Republican availability is concerned. For the big party issues, at the moment, are not economic. The Republicans, on the one hand, are making no significant attempt to repeal the consolidated history of 30 years of economic legislation — and if Goldwater were President he couldn't do much to erase a lot of laws that are now on the books. The Kennedy Democrats, on the other hand, are having no success in extending the welfare measures of the New and Fair Deals. In a country that is reasonably affluent, the moderates of both parties seem willing to accept the present level of State Welfareism. And the welfare issue, accordingly, promises to have little effect one way or the other in 1964.

Thus it is that Presidential politics are turning on such things as sectional pride. Or on the foreign policy issue. Goldwater might win the South because, though he believes in integration, he would not wave the bloody shirt or use force bill tactics to impose it at a "non-deliberate speed." Moreover, he appeals to a wide number of people who think it important to get rid of Castroism in the Caribbean sooner rather than later. Finally, he could sweep the northern suburbs because of his stand against compulsion in labor unionism.

All of this makes him the most non-divisive Republican. Kennedy did this for him, and Kennedy may have to take the consequences.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

When a case of hepatitis breaks out, fear of an epidemic tends to dominate the entire community. But almost invariably the fear is out of proportion to the situation.

When hepatitis does occur, public health officials mobilize their remarkable forces and immediately try to track down the source of infection and set up protection for the community.

Hepatitis is an infection of the liver. Viruses, bacteria, exposure to chemicals and certain drugs are only some of the factors that cause it.

Infectious hepatitis was formerly called "catarrhal jaundice", but this term has been discarded in the light of newer understanding of the disease.

The offending virus can enter the body through the mouth in food or water. It can also be inadvertently injected into the muscles or the blood stream with a needle that carries the virus.

Contamination is the key word to this disease. Even though water is constantly under scrutiny by public health authorities, the virus occasionally is in it. Needles and syringes, although carefully sterilized, sometimes harbor the virus.

Blood that contains the virus when used for a transfusion is sometimes responsible. Rigid precautions against this have been instituted by carefully screening all blood donors.

Because the incubation period of hepatitis varies, the exact origin is sometimes difficult to trace.

The disease seems to affect young adults and children chiefly. Immunity to hepatitis seems to develop as one approaches middle age. Gamma Globulin, when injected shortly after a suspected exposure to hepatitis, may prevent the disease or modify its severity.

The first stage of the illness is loss of appetite, headache, weakness and a fever of about 101 degrees F. Like so many other diseases, these symptoms are not in themselves distinctive enough for self-diagnosis.

The yellowish discoloration of the skin and the eyes is unmistakable jaundice. Studies of the blood indicate the severity of the disease.

Then the jaundice begins to disappear and slowly the strength and vitality return. Usually, the aftermath of infectious hepatitis may last as long as three or four months.

The treatment is rest. Alcohol is strictly forbidden. The antibiotics are used sparingly except for possible complications that may arise. Cortisone and ACTH are used only with great deliberation.

Infectious hepatitis occupies round-the-clock interest of scientists, physicians and health officials. The National Institutes of Health combine all the talents from every scientific specialty to uncover the origin and to control the spread of hepatitis. They have great hope that immunization against hepatitis by vaccination will soon be a reality.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN CASEY STENGEL was still piloting the New York Yankees world championship baseball team, he went to the Stadium very early one day to study the candi-

tion of the turf after a severe all-night rain. Nobody was in sight, but the ground crew—twenty or thirty men in green overalls, raking the infield and putting fresh white lime on the foul lines. Out of nowhere a couple of stout old ladies appeared upon the field. One of them tapped Casey on the arm and asked, "Do you happen to know which one of these men is Mickey Mantle?"

"Now, John," a mother coaxed her 7-year-old son, "you've been horsing around way past your bedtime. It's time to go to sleep." "I just can't, mom," argued John. "My mouth is still full of words."

The insurance adjuster was indignant. "How come," he demanded of the man who had sent for him, "that you didn't call the police the minute you discovered your car had been stolen?" "Well, for one thing," was the answer, "my wife was in it."

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — A spring boom in housing is under way. Building starts are well ahead of last year. The mortgage, business is brisk.

Part of the increase in construction is credited to the generally improved economic situation.

Personal incomes are up and more families have the money in hand or in sight to induce them to buy a new home. Industrial production is rising and so are retail sales, both adding to public confidence. And whether it's inflationary, the selective rise in steel prices may lead many who yearn for a new home to feel that the economy is moving again.

Part of the increase in home building is traced to easier credit terms.

Lending institutions have more available funds than a year ago. The competition to put this money to work profitably has led some lenders to grant longer terms on mortgages. This brings in some new buyers who would find it hard to meet tighter terms.

And part of the increased building is credited to the growth of special housing programs, such as those designed for older persons. Their number grows each year. Other housing units under way are traced to a rush to beat changes in zoning and other regulations.

Spring itself, of course, is a basic reason for a spurt right now. Good weather helps the builder, and it kindles the home-owning urge in many breasts.

Add them all up and they spell increased construction in March and April with mortgage applications suggesting a continuance of the boom for some time.

The Census Bureau reports the rate of housing starts rose 17 per cent from February to March in the nation as a whole. The biggest jump was in the Northeast where much of the 68 per cent increase over February was credited to apartment building.

The annual rate in March was 1,494,000 units, the highest since the 1962 peak rate of 1,586,000 set in November. Permits for future construction are running 8 per cent ahead of a year ago.

The Federal Housing Administration reports applications for government insurance on mortgages running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 197,000. The rate at the Veterans Administration is put at 152,000.

Actual building of new housing units last year came to 1,452,000, many regions continued to have building booms, although sales slowed down notably in others.

The Federal Home Loan Bank says that mortgage debt increased more in 1962 than in any previous year. It was up $15.2 billion, or 10 per cent, to a total of $168.3 billion.

Some of the increase, the bank says, was due to larger mortgages and higher selling prices on bigger houses. But it also notes the scramble of lending institutions to put their money to work, which brought in more customers attracted by easier payment terms, lower down payments, or lengthier mortgages.

VACATION CABIN — This A-frame design is popular because it's easy to build. Excellent for ski country, or perfect for warmer climates, too.

Novel Plan for Second Home

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Once upon a time, two-car families were rare. So were two-home families. Not any more.

The "second home" is a reality for many, a weekend retreat, a vacation hideaway.

Ten such houses are featured in "Ideas for Vacationland Homes," a booklet just published by the Western Pine Association.

One of these designs, the Engelmann Spruce, named after the species of wood used in this attractive cabin, was recently built by the Bill Brauner family in Kettle Falls, Washington, near the Canadian border.

The Brauners owned the property outright, an important factor when the question of financing arose. They found they could count on 100 per cent financing from a lending institution to cover cost of materials and labor because they had clear title to the land. In such circumstances, a seven-year loan with interest rates from 6 to 8 per cent could be arranged.

The Brauners chose the Engelmann Spruce because it suited the needs of their family of four as well as the demands of north Washington weather.

Construction costs were kept low because of the basic A-frame design and the use of "portable-by-the-piece" solid lumber.

The site was level, so there was no foundation problem.

Construction time was 105 man hours, extending over a three-day period. The Brauners had professional help but the cabin could be built by a do-it-yourselfer on weekends.

Costs for materials run about $1,000, depending on location, with labor apt to cost an additional $600. Costs, of course, differ in different localities.

The cabin contains a total of about 450 square feet — nearly 300 square feet on the ground level and about 150 square feet of loft space for extra sleeping quarters.

The ground level is free-flowing space from the living area at front through the middle service area to the rear sleeping quarters. There are rear windows both in the loft and below, plus a front wall of glass to make the cabin bright and airy.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beef moves back into the spotlight at supermarkets this week-end.

A nationwide chain offers ribs of beef at 55 cents a pound in its New York area outlets, boneless chuck roasts at 59 cents and sirloin at 79 cents.

These prices and others over the nation, reflect pressure exerted by the spring marketings of a record total of feed cattle.

Pork prices are also low, for much the same reason. Featured regionally are loin roasts and chops and a variety of cured meats, including hams and smoked butts.

Poultry supplies are ample, with fryers, roasting hens and turkeys most widely featured. Egg prices are still low.

Produce counters continue to reflect the advance of the season, with several fresh spring attractions showing up.

These include asparagus, artichokes and iceberg lettuce in the Northeast, English peas and turnip greens in the Southeast, green onions and peppers in the Midwest, yellow squash and brussels sprouts in the Southwest and rhubarb and cauliflower on the West Coast.

Fruit features include apples, bananas, grapefruit and strawberries.

Dear Abby: She Hates Organ Grinder!

DEAR ABBY: I love organ music, but if that piano player they have playing the organ at my church doesn't take some organ lessons pretty soon I am going to quit going to church. It is punishment to listen to. She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life. Believe me, she didn't have to say so. Anyone who knows organ music could tell it.

GRITTING MY TEETH DEAR ABBY: Call your clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist—or educating the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her husband are planning a trip to Europe. We offered to keep their two pre-school children during their six-week trip, and they had the nerve to ask us to keep their dog! I don't care for dogs and neither does my husband. My daughter says it will spoil her trip if they have to put the dog in a kennel. She's afraid he might be mistreated or maybe die of homesickness. Are we wrong in refusing to keep him? Or are they wrong for insisting?

NO DOGS DEAR NO: It is cruel to force an animal on people who dislike animals. The dog deserves better. Explain this to your daughter. Don't let her talk you into anything or it shouldn't happen to a dog.

Views on TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the good old days of television the presumption was that programs starring Loretta Young, Barbara Stanwyck, June Allyson, Jane Wyman and other female stars interested primarily the ladies of the audience.

When male critics want to administer a coup de grace to any effort, they invariably call it a "soap opera."

One of the enterprising ratings services recently made a special survey among women viewers and reported (in the current issue of the trade magazine Broadcasting) the evening network programs most appealing to feminine viewers.

Not very surprisingly, the survey found women enjoy all the medical shows, with "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare" in the top spots and "The Nurses" and "11th Hour" not far down the list.

But all of the programs dearest to feminine hearts are drama—not a comedy effort in the batch: "The Defenders," "Dick Powell Theatre," "Going My Way," even "Lassie."

There is just one western in the top 10 list: "Empire," a contemporary show and not really a classic western. Its plot lines often are loaded with soap opera dramatic clichés.

ABC plans a series of hour-long science fiction tales on Monday nights next season called "The Outer Limits." The series originally was called "Please Stand By." Science fiction tales, for some reason, have never done very well in network television, but maybe, with all the space shots, audiences are better prepared for them than they were in the days of, for instance, "The Man and the Challenge."

Recommended weekend viewing: Tonight—"Here's Edie," ABC, 9:30 (Eastern Standard Time)—Another in Edie Adams' series of short musical specials.

Saturday—"The Defenders," CBS, 8:30-9:30 p.m.—script about jurors by Reginald Rose.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific crush on my family doctor. I am a happily married young woman with children and it annoys me to have this doctor on my mind all day. I told my husband about it and even offered to change doctors, but he said it wouldn't do any good because I'd only develop a crush on the next one. And, besides, he says EVERY woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true? I know my doctor doesn't feel anything special toward me, but that doesn't change my feelings toward him. Any suggestions?

MRS. X. DEAR MRS.: Every woman is NOT "in love" with her doctor. Your feelings of gratitude, admiration and respect are confused with romantic love. Analyze your emotions and recognize them for what they are or your doctor will never be able to get a history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

College Prexy-Elect Is Cool On Home Ec Class for Women

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — "I still maintain," says Dr. Rosemary Park, "that an A on a Shakespeare paper is not the same as an A in egg omelet."

Dr. Park, who will be officially inaugurated as president of Barnard College April 22, is discussing one of the mores in her academic spectrum, home economics. Typically, she does it with wry humor. "I get the home economists after me, but I think I'm right. I'm not opposed to going into nutrition as a profession, but to think you can train 'em up scientifically to be artists to run a home— You can't run a home according to certain scientific principles."

Fortunately, there is no home economics for the 1,600 girls at Barnard, where Dr. Park quietly took up her duties last fall, succeeding Millicent C. McIntosh.

Dr. Park is a small woman with graying hair, a youthful mobile face and blue eyes that "look at you warmly."

She is no stern moralist; "I went to college in the '20s which was supposed to be a wide open era. I'm afraid I can't get as excited as most about the state of girls' morals today."

As for educating girls, she believes in doing it on the same academic level as for boys.

"Women have a more complicated role to play than a man does."

"It seems to me that when you've got society set up as it is, women are expected to take part in its economic life. I say to my girls: 'Most of you will be gainfully employed at some point in your life, shouldn't you be prepared?'"

"I tell them: 'You should be prepared as a dentist, for example, in case the gentleman you can stand doesn't come along. It's better to be trained as a dentist and never practice than to want desperately to be a dentist and not have the training.'"

VACATION CABIN — This A-frame design is popular because it's easy to build. Excellent for ski country, or perfect for warmer climates, too.

Novel Plan for Second Home

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Once upon a time, two-car families were rare. So were two-home families. Not any more.

The "second home" is a reality for many, a weekend retreat, a vacation hideaway.

Ten such houses are featured in "Ideas for Vacationland Homes", a booklet just published by the Western Pine Association.

One of these designs, the Engelmann Spruce, named after the species of wood used in this attractive cabin, was recently built by the Bill Brauner family in Kettle Falls, Washington, near the Canadian border.

The Brauners owned the property outright, an important factor when the question of financing arose. They found they could count on 100 per cent financing from a lending institution to cover cost of materials and labor because they had clear title to the land. In such circumstances, a seven-year loan with interest rates from 6 to 8 per cent could be arranged.

The Brauners chose the Engelmann Spruce because it suited the needs of their family of four as well as the demands of north Washington weather.

Construction costs were kept low because of the basic A-frame design and the use of "portable-by-the-piece" solid lumber.

The site was level, so there was no foundation problem.

Construction time was 105 man hours, extending over a three-day period. The Brauners had professional help but the cabin could be built by a do-it-yourselfer on weekends.

Costs for materials run about $1,000, depending on location, with labor apt to cost an additional $600. Costs, of course, differ in different localities.

The cabin contains a total of about 450 square feet — nearly 300 square feet on the ground level and about 150 square feet of loft space for extra sleeping quarters.

The ground level is free-flowing space from the living area at front through the middle service area to the rear sleeping quarters. There are rear windows both in the loft and below, plus a front wall of glass to make the cabin bright and airy.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beef moves back into the spotlight at supermarkets this week-end.

A nationwide chain offers ribs of beef at 55 cents a pound in its New York area outlets, boneless chuck roasts at 59 cents and sirloin at 79 cents.

These prices and others over the nation, reflect pressure exerted by the spring marketings of a record total of feed cattle.

Pork prices are also low, for much the same reason. Featured regionally are loin roasts and chops and a variety of cured meats, including hams and smoked butts.

Poultry supplies are ample, with fryers, roasting hens and turkeys most widely featured. Egg prices are still low.

Produce counters continue to reflect the advance of the season, with several fresh spring attractions showing up.

These include asparagus, artichokes and iceberg lettuce in the Northeast, English peas and turnip greens in the Southeast, green onions and peppers in the Midwest, yellow squash and brussels sprouts in the Southwest and rhubarb and cauliflower on the West Coast.

Fruit features include apples, bananas, grapefruit and strawberries.

Miss Dutcher, Mr. Conkle To Marry in June

MISS BETTY ANN DUTCHER

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Dutcher, 325 S. Pickaway St., are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Betty Ann, to Mr. Lonnie Conkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Conkle of Carroll, O.

Miss Dutcher is a senior at Circleville High School. Mr. Conkle attended Carroll High School and is presently employed by the Meusers Meat Packing Co., Canal Winchester.

The open church wedding will be an event of June 1 at the Carroll EUB Church.

St. Anne's Guild To Sponsor Tea

St. Anne's Guild of St. Philip's Episcopal Church will sponsor a "Come and Taste Tea" from 2-4 p. m. Wednesday in the parish hall.

An assortment of cookies, tea sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres, made by guild members, will be available to each guest, plus tea or coffee.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or from a guild member. Babysitters will be available.

OES Unit To Assemble

Circleville Chapter 90, OES, will meet 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Masonic Temple.

Guest Night Observed by Guild Members

Guest Night was observed when members of Berger Hospital Guilds No. 40 and No. 19 met Tuesday evening in the guild room at Berger Hospital.

Guests present were, Mrs. Ned Young, Mrs. Howard Parker, Mrs. Don Valentine, Miss Margaret Wright, Mrs. Gerald Winfough, Mrs. Richard Robson and Mrs. John Carter.

Jim Brown, a child counselor for the Teays Valley Elementary School, was guest speaker. He briefly outlined the factors needed in the home to produce happy well-adjusted children. He said the four most important items are love, discipline, family worship and self understanding. He answered many questions submitted by the group.

Refreshments were served in the guild dining room. Hostesses were Mrs. Don Colgrove, Mrs. Thomas Bergen, Mrs. Charles Jolliffe and Mrs. Truman Eberly.

Dear Abby: She Hates Organ Grinder!

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I love organ music, but if that piano player they have playing the organ at my church doesn't take some organ lessons pretty soon I am going to quit going to church. It is punishment to listen to. She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life. Believe me, she didn't have to say so. Anyone who knows organ music could tell it.

GRITTING MY TEETH
DEAR GRITTING: Call your clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organ—or educating the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her husband are planning a trip to Europe. We offered to keep their two pre-school children during their six-week trip, and they had the nerve to ask us to keep their dog! I don't care for dogs and neither does my husband. My daughter says it will spoil her trip if they have to put the dog in a kennel. She's afraid he might be mistreated or maybe die of homesickness. Are we wrong in refusing to keep him? Or are they wrong for insisting?

NO DOGS

DEAR NO: It is cruel to force an animal on people who dislike animals. The dog deserves better. Explain this to your daughter. Don't let her talk you into anything or it shouldn't happen to a dog.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific crush on my family doctor. I am a happily married young woman with children and it annoys me to have this doctor on my mind all day. I told my husband about it and even offered to change doctors, but he said it wouldn't do any good because I'd only develop a crush on the next one. And, besides, he says EVERY woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true? I know my doctor doesn't feel anything special toward me, but that doesn't change my feelings toward him. Any suggestions?

MRS. X.

DEAR MRS.: Every woman is NOT "in love" with her doctor. Your feelings of gratitude, admiration and respect are confused with romantic love. Analyze your emotions and recognize them for what they are or your doctor will never be able to get a history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CAL: Buy a compass with a mirror on the back, so when you look in the mirror you can see who's lost.

Stop worrying. Write to Abby. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Meet Set Wednesday

Past Chief's Club of Pythian Sisters No. 516 will meet 8 p. m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Allen Strawser, 228 Logan St.

GOP Boosters To Meet

Mrs. John Steinhauer, Williamsport will be hostess when members of the GOP Boosters meet 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

It's a good idea to line the bottom of cake pans with waxed paper this way you'll have no trouble in removing the cake. If there's no waxed paper in the house, use brown paper.

Always put a cake in the center of the oven, and it's usually best to let it bake without any other food in the oven.

College Prexy-Elect Is Cool On Home Ec Class for Women

By JOY MILLER

AP Women's Editor. . . . . NEW YORK (AP) — "I still maintain," says Dr. Rosemary Park, "that an A on a Shakespeare paper is not the same as an A in egg omelet."

Dr. Park, who will be officially inaugurated as president of Barnard College April 22, is discussing one of the notes in her academic spectrum, home economics. Typically, she does it with wry humor. "I get the home economists after me, but I think I'm right. I'm not opposed to going into nutrition as a profession, but to think you can train 'em up scientifically to be artists to run a home— You can't run a home according to certain scientific principles."

Fortunately, there is no home economics for the 1,600 girls at Barnard, where Dr. Park quietly took up her duties last fall, succeeding Millicent C. McIntosh.

Dr. Park is a small woman with graying hair, a youthful mobile face and blue eyes that look at you warmly.

She is no stern moralist; "I went to college in the '20s which was supposed to be a wide open era. I'm afraid I can't get as excited as most about the state of girls' morals today."

As for educating girls, she believes in doing it on the same academic level as for boys.

"Women have a more complicated role to play than a man does."

"It seems to me that when you've got society set up as it is, women are expected to take part in its economic life. I say to my girls: 'Most of you will be gainfully employed at some point in your life, shouldn't you be prepared?'"

"I tell them: 'You should be prepared as a dentist, for example, in case the gentleman you can stand doesn't come along. It's better to be trained as a dentist and never practice than to want desperately to be a dentist and not have the training.'"

'Peace Corps for Laymen' Gains Catholic Missions Nod

FORT PORTAL, Uganda (AP) —
A "peace corps for laymen" is gaining strength and favor within the Catholic Church, especially in far off mission lands.

Catholic missionaries have been going to the distant areas of the world since Christ commanded
His Apostles to "teach all nations," nearly 2,000 years ago, but usually it was a black-robed or white-robed priest or nun who was the familiar figure in the
tepid jungles or arid desert lands.

Since World War II there has been a great increase in the number of laymen and women who are helping the missionaries. This also is true in the Protestant churches.

"The biggest problem in mission lands is the shortage of priests and nuns. The lay person accomplishes tasks that free the clergy so they can concentrate on their more spiritual duties," said
the Most Rev. Vincent J. McCauley, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, the bishop of Fort Portal.

Fourteen lay people are working in Bishop McCauley's diocese on the Uganda-Congo border. They come from the United States,
Canada, England and South America.

They usually do the same jobs with which they are familiar at home. However, their salary usually is much less.

"But the deep satisfaction you receive from helping people in need more than compensates for

U.S. Food Aid Helps Algerians

3 Million Are Able To Survive Winter

ALGIERS (AP) — More than three million Algerians—one third of the country's population—have survived the first post-independence winter thanks to U.S. food
aid.

Every month, American ships have been bringing 40,000 tons of surplus wheat, vegetable oil and powdered milk to feed Algeria's
hungry masses.

The program theoretically ends next month, although the food situation in Algeria continues to be alarming, the Algerian authorities
thus far have made no request
for continuation of the program.
Harvest normally begins in Algeria in June.

U.S. Ambassador William Porter says American food aid has been one of the most regular features of Algeria's post-independence life.

Yet the vital shipments have received little publicity in press and radio. The fact that the American food is free apparently em-barrasses Algerian sensitivity.

Taken shipments of Soviet wheat and occasional gifts by various satellite nations have been accompanied by a more efficient publicity campaign and

The Algerians generally seem
aware that America has been helping them survive the most difficult period of their independent existence. Cans of vegetable oil with American markings have become common in the Algerian countryside, serving as a reminder of the American effort.

But a widespread belief that
America's wealth has no limits
and the fact that the wheat has come from surplus stocks reduced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's
Supreme Court has refused to review the conviction of a Lawson Milk Co. store manager on a charge of violating a Euclid city ordinance based on Ohio's blue laws.

Charges against John MacGillis involved the sale on Sunday of $2.74 in milk, bread, charcoal, lighter fluid, pop and cold prepared meat.

MacGillis' case was dismissed by Euclid Municipal Court but an appeal court reversed and an appeal was carried to the high court.

Still pending before the Supreme Court is the conviction of another Lawson manager, Robert Gilfeath-er, in Elyria on charges of violating the blue laws the same day
MacGillis was arrested.

FORT PORTAL, Uganda (AP) —
A "peace corps for laymen" is gaining strength and favor within
the Catholic Church, especially in
far off mission lands.

Catholic missionaries have been going to the distant areas of the world since Christ commanded
His Apostles to "teach all nations," nearly 2,000 years ago, but usually it was a black-robed or white-robed priest or nun who
was the familiar figure in the
tepid jungles or arid desert lands.

Since World War II there has
been a great increase in the number of laymen and women who are helping the missionaries. This also is true in the Protestant churches.

"The biggest problem in mission lands is the shortage of
priests and nuns. The lay person
accomplishes tasks that free the clergy so they can concentrate on
their more spiritual duties," said
the Most Rev. Vincent J. McCauley, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, the bishop of Fort Portal.

Fourteen lay people are working in Bishop McCauley's diocese on
the Uganda-Congo border. They come from the United States,
Canada, England and South America.

They usually do the same jobs
with which they are familiar at home. However, their salary usually is much less.

"But the deep satisfaction you
receive from helping people in need more than compensates for any loss of pay." Alba Camargo of Colombia, a nurse in the mission hospital, said.

Other lay people in the diocese are engineers, teachers and doctors.

Bill Young, an engineer from Chicago, does maintenance work at the 50-building mission and directs construction of schools and churches for Africans.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Goyeau, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Canada, a husband-wife doctor team, have just arrived to work in the mission hospital run by the order of the Medical Mission Sisters.

Several of the Protestant missions in the Fort Portal area also have lay people teaching at the missions and helping out in other ways.

3 Million Are Able To Survive Winter

ALGIERS (AP) — More than
three million Algerians—one third of the country's population—have survived the first post-independence winter thanks to U.S. food
aid.

Every month, American ships
have been bringing 40,000 tons of surplus wheat, vegetable oil and powdered milk to feed Algeria's
hungry masses.

The program theoretically ends
next month, although the food situation in Algeria continues to be alarming, the Algerian authorities
thus far have made no request
for continuation of the program.
Harvest normally begins in Algeria in June.

U.S. Ambassador William Porter says American food aid has been one of the most regular features of Algeria's post-independence life.

Yet the vital shipments have received little publicity in press and radio. The fact that the American food is free apparently em-
barrasses Algerian sensitivity.

Taken shipments of Soviet
wheat and occasional gifts by various satellite nations have been accompanied by a more efficient publicity campaign and

The Algerians generally seem
aware that America has been helping them survive the most difficult period of their independent existence. Cans of vegetable oil with American markings have become common in the Algerian
countryside, serving as a reminder of the American effort.

But a widespread belief that
America's wealth has no limits
and the fact that the wheat has come from surplus stocks reduced the propaganda impact.

Psalms In Worship and Life

THE WAY OF THE LORD IS THE WAY OF PERMANENT SATISFACTIONS

Scripture—Psalms 1; 15; 73.

By N. SPEER JONES
OUR STUDY of the Psalms should begin, perhaps, with a brief discussion of their function and authorship. The word "psalm" comes from the Greek psalmos, which means a poem sung to musical accompaniment. The Hebrew text contains 150 Psalms; the Greek, Latin and English Bibles contain the same material but number it differently, combining the Hebrew 9 and 10, and 114 and 115, but splitting Psalms 116 and 147 into two each.

There are five books within the book, the end of each marked with an Amen. Book I contains Psalms 1 to 41; Book II, 42 to 72; Book III, 73 to 89; Book IV, 90 to 106, and Book V, 107 to 150. Of the total, David, "the sweet psalmist of Israel" authored 73. Asaph wrote Psalms 50 and 73-83; Moses wrote the 90th; Solomon authored 72 and 127; a family of Levitical singers called the sons of Korah wrote 12 Psalms, and the remaining 49 are anonymous.

The First Psalm, assigned to our lesson today, is an anonymous one, and nothing is known of the circumstances of its writing. Significantly, it begins with the same word as Christ's great opening sermon, the Sermon on the Mount.

The second part of the first verse lists three successive steps in a career of evil — adopting the principles of wickedness, practicing notorious offense, and open mocking at religion. The righteous man is likened

Bayonets Guard Old Maple Tree

Civil War Buffs Feud With Highway Crew

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP)—It is almost an idyllic scene in this northwest Arkansas, Ozark Mountain community—a group of Civil War buffs, in uniform, surrounding a maple tree.

They stand there, vintage muzzle loaders tipped with bayonets glinting in the sun.

One could imagine a Civil War centennial event.

Actually, the eight colorfully dressed men—Hindman's Raiders they call themselves—are there to help W. T. Pitts in his battle with contractors who are widening U.S. Highway 71 through Springdale.

Pitts, owner of the used car lot on which the tree stands, has hired the group to defend the tree until he has been compensated for the land on which it stands.

A construction company wants the land for right-of-way.

The first skirmish occurred on Wednesday when W. W. Sanders of Tulsa, Okla., foreman for the Anchor Construction Co., approached the group.

He was told that anyone who tried to remove the tree would "be met with cold steel." Sanders strolled away grinning.

The test, according to Pitts, is whether anyone can go on private property and remove a tree without permission.

Sanders, who is conducting his road widening work elsewhere for the time being, says he will eventually move the tree, legally.

Male Fears Of Gal Getting Job Unfounded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some worry men are beginning to rob—what with women entering the work force in ever growing numbers—that the gals are pushing the men out of the unemployment rolls.

The experts at the Labor Department say there is no real ground for such fears.

With 4.5 million workers unemployed, considerable attention was directed to a recent Labor Department announcement that a third of all married women are now holding paid jobs as well as their husbands. Moreover, the total of working women is rising faster than that of men.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz reflects a feeling held in many quarters that jobs should be filled on the basis of ability rather than sex.

"The charge is often made that women workers are filling jobs they do not need and which could be filled by unemployed men if the women were not working. Our studies show that women work for the same reasons that men do—to support themselves and themselves as their dependents. Women's earnings in many families are a substantial factor in meeting living costs.

4 Akron Youths Face Murder Rap in Slaying

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Four Akron youths, who confessed the robbery-slaying of a 61-year-old man who died in City Hospital after they fled with an empty wallet, may face first-degree murder charges.

Summit County Prosecutor John S. Ballard instructed Detective Capt. Carroll Cutright to file the charges against Milton Campbell Jr., 20, Nolan Smith, 18, Bennie Davis, 18, and Frank Galvin, 17. Police said the four admitted assaulting Joseph Wharton on April 8. He died Wednesday without regaining consciousness.

Problems of Cuban Exiles

Uneasiness in Miami Grows As Refugees Total Climbs

EDITOR'S NOTE—The influx of Cuban exiles in Miami has created tremendous pressures and resentments among the local population that do not seem to be near solution, despite the U.S. ban on further exile raids against Castro's Cuba. Last of four special articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—There is a vague feeling of uneasiness around here.

At the moment, Miamians profess to see nothing to be alarmed about in their city's unique situation. But its problems are growing.

The well-traveled visitor senses something akin to West Berlin here. In a way, Miami is a sister city to West Berlin, an outpost of the cold war which has opened its arms to tens of thousands of refugees from communism.

But unlike West Berlin, Miami is host to foreigners speaking a foreign tongue, clinging to foreign customs. Some of the habits, some of the characteristic ways of the Cubans can grate on the nerves of Americans.

You hear complaints that the way Cubans drive their automobiles the way they drove them in Havana—and that was wildly. You hear complaints that Cubans are emotional and noisy and like to talk at the tops of their voices at all hours of the night. You hear that Cubans give the impression that what happened to them was the United States' fault, and Americans owe them a living.

But these are small matters, which would mean little unless complicated by much graver problems.

Inside Miami today there is a city within a city, an American community separated by a cultural chasm from the refugees it shelters. The Cuban refugee population—despite resettlement of 57,000 in the past two years—probably numbers well above 150,000. It may be 200,000. No accurate figures are available.

Miami, already with a fragile economy, sees it, problems multiplying daily.

This city was elected, because of its geography, to become an instrument of U.S. policy, without having been consulted in advance. Never in U.S. history has any American city been required to undertake such a massive assimilation of foreigners in such a short time.

Mayor Robert King High says he is proud of the way the city responded.

"Miamians have acted nobly and with maturity," the mayor told me, "and the thanks of the nation should be extended to them."

But the new crackdown by the U.S. government on hostile Cuban exile activity against the Castro regime has increased Miami's worries. The main source of worry is the current competition for jobs.

About 65,000 Cubans receive federal relief because they have no other means of support. Once a Cuban gets a job, the relief checks stop coming. The refugee relief bill for 2½ years has been $80 million for the federal government. This money is spent in Miami. Many merchants benefit from it. But some merchants complain that Cubans tend to spend the money in Cuban neighborhoods and shops, going out of their way to do so.

Relief money is not precisely a Cuban contribution. But there are contributions to the economy. Cubans rent 20,000 homes which otherwise would be unused or perhaps used only in the tourist months. Licenses for 2,000 businesses have been issued to Cubans. Florida now has a sugar plantation and three sugar mills representing an investment of

THE WAY OF THE LORD IS THE WAY OF PERMANENT SATISFACTIONS

By N. SPEER JONES
OUR STUDY of the Psalms should begin, perhaps, with a brief discussion of their function and authorship. The word "psalm" comes from the Greek psalmos, which means a poem sung to musical accompaniment. The Hebrew text contains 150 Psalms; the Greek, Latin and English Bibles contain the same material but number it differently, combining the Hebrew 9 and 10, and 114 and 115, but splitting Psalms 116 and 147 into two each.

There are five books within the book, the end of each marked with an Amen. Book I contains Psalms 1 to 41; Book II, 42 to 72; Book III, 73 to 89; Book IV, 90 to 106, and Book V, 107 to 150. Of the total, David, "the sweet psalmist of Israel," authored 73. Asaph wrote Psalms 50 and 73-83; Moses wrote the 90th; Solomon authored 72 and 127; a family of Levitical singers called the sons of Korah wrote 12 Psalms, and the remaining 49 are anonymous.

The First Psalm, assigned to our lesson today, is an anonymous one, and nothing is known of the circumstances of its writing. Significantly, it begins with the same word as Christ's great opening sermon, the Sermon on the Mount.

The second part of the first verse lists three successive steps in a career of evil — adopting the principles of wickedness, practicing notorious offense, and open mocking at religion.

The righteous man is likened to a sturdy tree which brings forth fruit. The comparison is significant. The word tree is connected with the Anglo-Saxon word treowan, which means to trust or to prove. The fact that it is planted by the water indicates a continuing source of nourishment; the river is a symbol of life itself in the East. A righteous man's well-springs are God Himself.

Particularly significant is the fact that a fruit tree lives less than a non-bearing tree, for it sacrifices part of its own life to bring forth its precious fruit. The righteous man, in just such a way, denies himself, sacrifices himself, for others. This is the Christian's greatest distinguishing feature.

On the other hand, the unrighteous man, like the chaff, is blown by any wanton wind which blows.

In Verse 5 of the First Psalm, the word "stand" does not mean that the sinner shall not be at the Judgment, but that he will not be able to hold up his head.

The Fifteenth Psalm is one of David's; the subtitle proclaiming this is part of the original Biblical text, and not a later editing. It is thought that it was written to celebrate the consecration of the Ark of the Covenant at Zion.

Psalm 73 is the first of the 12 Psalms written by Asaph. The problem is stated in the first 14 verses; the solution, in verses 15-22, and the resulting comforts in the concluding paragraph.

Bayonets Guard Old Maple Tree

Civil War Buffs Feud With Highway Crew

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP)—It is almost an idyllic scene in this northwest Arkansas, Ozark Mountain community—a group of Civil War buffs, in uniform, surrounding a maple tree.

They stand there, vintage muzzle loaders tipped with bayonets glinting in the sun.

One could imagine a Civil War centennial event.

Actually, the eight colorfully dressed men—Hindman's Raiders they call themselves—are there to help W. T. Pitts in his battle with contractors who are widening U.S. Highway 71 through Springdale.

Pitts, owner of the used car lot on which the tree stands, has hired the group to defend the tree until he has been compensated for the land on which it stands.

A construction company wants the land for right-of-way.

The first skirmish occurred on Wednesday when W. W. Sanders of Tulsa, Okla., foreman for the Anchor Construction Co., approached the group.

He was told that anyone who tried to remove the tree would "be met with cold steel." Sanders stroled away grinning.

The test, according to Pitts, is whether anyone can go on private property and remove a tree without permission.

Sanders, who is conducting his road widening work elsewhere for the time being, says he will eventually move the tree, legally.

Male Fears Of Gal Getting Job Unfounded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some robust men are beginning to worry—that with women entering the work force in ever growing numbers—that the gals are pushing the men out on the unemployment rolls.

The experts at the Labor Department say there is no real ground for such fears.

With 4.5 million workers unemployed, considerable attention was directed to a recent Labor Department announcement that a third of all married women are now holding paid jobs as well as their husbands. Moreover, the total of working women is rising faster than that of men.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz reflects a feeling held in many quarters that jobs should be filled on the basis of ability rather than sex.

"The charge is often made that women workers are filling jobs they do not need and which could be filled by unemployed men if the women were not working. Our studies show that women work for the same reasons that men do—to support themselves and themselves and their dependents. Women's earnings in many families are a substantial factor in meeting living costs."

4 Akron Youths Face Murder Rap in Slaying

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Four Akron youths, who confessed the robbery-slaying of a 61-year-old man who died in City Hospital after they fled with an empty wallet, may face first-degree murder charges.

Summit County Prosecutor John S. Ballard instructed Detective Capt. Carroll Cutright to file the charges against Milton Campbell Jr., 20, Nolan Smith, 18, Bennie Davis, 18, and Frank Galvin, 17.

Police said the four admitted assaulting Joseph Wharton on April 8. He died Wednesday without regaining consciousness.

Uneasiness in Miami Grows As Refugees Total Climbs

EDITOR'S NOTE—The influx of Cuban exiles in Miami has created tremendous pressures and resentments among the local population that do not seem to be near solution, despite the U.S. ban on further exile raids against Castro's Cuba. Last of four special articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—There is a vague feeling of uneasiness around here.

At the moment, Miamians profess to see nothing to be alarmed about in their city's unique situation. But its problems are growing.

The well-traveled visitor senses something akin to West Berlin here. In a way, Miami is a sister city to West Berlin, an outpost of the cold war which has opened its arms to tens of thousands of refugees from communism.

But unlike West Berlin, Miami is host to foreigners speaking a foreign tongue, clinging to foreign customs. Some of the customs, some of the habits, some of the characteristic ways of the Cubans can grate on the nerves of Americans.

You hear complaints that the way Cubans drive their automobiles is the way they drove them in Havana—and that was wild. You hear complaints that Cubans are emotional and noisy and like to talk at the tops of their voices at all hours of the night. You hear that Cubans give the impression that what happened to them was the United States' fault, and Americans owe them a living.

But these are small matters, which would mean little unless complicated by much graver problems.

Inside Miami today there is a city within a city, an American community separated by a cultural chasm from the refugees it shelters. The Cuban refugee population—despite resettlement of 57,000 in the past two years—probably numbers well above 150,000. It may be 200,000. No accurate figures are available.

Miami, already with a fragile economy, sees it, problems multiplying daily.

This city was elected, because of its geography, to become an instrument of U.S. policy, without having been consulted in advance. Never in U.S. history has any American city been required to undertake such a massive assimilation of foreigners in such a short time.

Mayor Robert King High says he is proud of the way the city responded.

But the new crackdown by the U.S. government on hostile Cuban exile activity against the Castro regime has increased Miami's worries. The main source of worry is the current competition for jobs.

About 65,000 Cubans receive federal relief because they have no other means of support. Once a Cuban gets a job, the relief checks stop coming. The refugee relief bill for 2½ years has been $80 million for the federal government. This money is spent in Miami. Many merchants benefit from it. But some merchants complain that Cubans tend to spend the money in Cuban neighborhoods and shops, going out of their way to do so.

Relief money is not precisely a Cuban contribution. But there are contributions to the economy. Cubans rent 20,000 homes which otherwise would be unused or perhaps used only in the tourist months. Licenses for 2,000 businesses have been issued to Cubans. Florida now has a sugar plantation and three sugar mills representing an investment of

But the problem of jobs remains and grows steadily. The federal relief checks which go to unemployed Cubans also add to local resentment.

Miamians out of work get no federal checks. They must depend on county aid handed out on an emergency basis.

The city's unemployed want to know why the Cubans don't stick to relief and leave the jobs to others.

There is no minimum wage law in Florida, and jobs go for bidding. The Cuban, anxious not to be a charity case, often works for less money. He brings certain skills with him, including ability, often, to speak both Spanish and English, which makes him valuable for work in stores and certain other enterprises.

A large amount of unskilled workers, among them many Negroes, are out of jobs, unable to get work, and feeling resentful about it. Undoubtedly the unemployment problem will worsen as the slack summer season approaches.

THEY'RE MULTIPLYING—The President and Mrs. Kennedy, who will have their third child in August, are shown in an Easter photo with daughter Caroline, 5, and son John Jr., 2.

Three Plays To Be Staged At Logan Elm

Since the second semester began late in January, more than twenty-five Logan Elm High School students have been spending two evenings a week working on dramatics under the direction of Robert Ransom.

Beginning with pantomimes and monologues, the group is now putting the finishing touches on three one-act plays which will be presented for the public next Friday evening, April 26 at the high school.

The first play, a comedy, "Three on a Bench" tells how a loveable old lady goes about settling a lover's quarrel. The cast includes Steve Benner, Becky Alkire, Page Miller, and Larry Downs. Joan Enoch is the prompter for this play.

The second play, "Tell Dorie Not To Cry" shows the effect of the bombing of Pearl Harbor on plans for a wedding. Members of the cast are Janet DeLong, Anita Moats, Barbara Huber, Brenda List, Linda Trimmer and Cheryl Hulse, Carlene Fullen is the prompter.

The setting for the third play is a funeral and its leading character, Drexel Poling is the deceased. Leola Harmon plays the role of "Friend". Among the mourners are a mother and daughter, Jean Strous and Ginger Smalley; a husband and wife, Steve Benner and Judy Young; and a girl, fiancée of the deceased, Linda Dahl. Jim Lands plays the part of a gangster and Linda Dahl is also the prompter.

Working with tickets and publicity are Ginger Smalley and Leola Harmon.

Rehearsals Progressing For Musical

Rehearsals are progressing for the Teays Valley Spring Musical to be presented by elementary grades and junior high school at Walnut, Ashville and Scioto schools on May 3, 7 and 10 respectively.

Both humorous and serious skits and scenes will be presented. Solo and ensemble presentations will be featured throughout the musical program.

Black-light productions which cause objects to "glow" in the dark will be used with band selections "Go Down Moses", "Dry Bones", and "Were You There". Clowns and cartoon characters will please the youngsters in the production number, "Toyland". The instrumental ensemble presentation of "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue" promises to provide fun for folks of all ages as "Gertrude Klackenmyer" is featured.

Although standard scenery sets will be used for most selections, a slide projection method will also be used to provide more colorful and interesting settings and at the same time do away with troublesome scenic changes.

A patriotic finale based upon the theme "America the Beautiful" will bring an inspiring and thrilling ending to an evening of fun and entertainment.

EXTRA COLLAR—This is one of the custom made shirts sold at Todd Gilbert's men's shop in Chicago. That's an extra collar sewn on the tail of the shirt. The idea is, the extra collar gets the same laundering as the rest of the shirt, and when the time comes to replace the other collar, this one will be the same hue.

PUPPET PROJECT — These members of the third grade at Washington Twp. School enjoyed their tasks of making puppets for a combined social studies and art project. The puppets represented characters in six favorite stories written for children. Mothers of the pupils aided in making necessary costumes.

Washington Third Graders Complete Puppet Project

The leading lady who becomes ill or the child with stage fright or measles have made tragedies of comedies since humans began performing for the entertainment of others.

When each class member had learned the lines to be spoken by his puppet, Mrs. Adkins recorded the speaking parts on tape. Thus the plays have gone on through a siege of flu, mumps and measles — sometimes with strange hands manipulating the puppets but with the same voices.

Each class member made his puppet head of paper-mache molded over a balloon blown to the proper size and shape. Help from mothers of class members was solicited in making the costumes. Twenty-five puppets were created.

When the fourth and fifth grades were guests of the third grade an easel beside the stage announced that the audience was to see "the greatest puppet show on earth". The program proceeded with Willis Fannin serving as master of ceremonies.

Beginning with "The Three Little Pigs" the characters were Mother Pig, Marcia Rhodes; First Pig, Jerry Norris; Second Pig, Karen Stiles; Third Pig, Jeff Young; Wolf, Willis Fannin. This was a musical production with the three little pigs singing, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf".

The second Puppet show was "The Three Bears" with Janet Simmons as Goldilocks, Gary Benner as Papa Bear, Debbie Ely as Mama Bear and Jimmy Peters as Baby Bear. The next play was "Rumpelstiltskin" with a cast of characters which included Steven Carter as the King, Lettisha Miller as the Miller's Daughter and Jeffery Russell as Rumpelstiltskin.

For "Hansel and Gretel" the characters were Father, Mike Dyke; Hansel, Bob Helweggen; Gretel, Sharon Boysel; and the Witch, Cindy Willis. For "Red Riding Hood" the title role was played by Yvonne Wiggins; the Wolf by Billy Bryant; the Grandmother by Donna Teets and the Wood Cutter by Bruce Hardman. The last play "The Golden Ball" had Becky Moss as the Princess; George Baughman as the Frog; Debbie Wilder as the King and Wurtie Teets as the Prince.

Scholarship Awarded to LE Student

JAMES WILSON

James Wilson, sophomore at Logan Elm High School, has been awarded a summer science scholarship at Asbury College, Wilmore Ky. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reed Wilson of Jefferson Subdivision.

Students nominated for the scholarships may elect to study biology, physics or chemistry for credit in their local high school. To be recommended for the scholarship the student must be in the upper five per cent of his class scholastically and be outstanding in other school areas. Scholarships are limited to tenth graders or very outstanding ninth graders.

The summer science session at Asbury is financed entirely with federal funds and the classes are taught by outstanding government approved science instructors. The seven-week session, which runs from June 17 to August 9, includes both study and recreation.

As a top ranking student, Wilson is a member of the Logan Elm Scholarship team for the second year. He will represent Logan Elm in the Final District Scholarship tests at Ohio State University in world history this year. Last year he took the test in general science. He is also active in music, is a member of both chorus and band at Logan Elm and for the County Music Festival. He participated as a trumpet soloist in the Ohio Music Education Association competitions at Capital University. He is also a member of the Choraliers, a vocal ensemble made up of Logan Elm High School students.

The award winner has selected biology as his subject for study at Asbury.

Class Pictures On Display at Ashville School

Visitors to the Ashville Elementary School have the opportunity to see pictures of the Class of 1896, the first graduating class of Ashville High School, as well as pictures of the final graduating class of 1962 displayed in the school corridor.

The picture of the Class of 1896 was furnished through the courtesy of Rolland F. McCrillis of Norwalk, who many years ago married one of the graduates, Miss Ella Morrison. McCrillis is owner and manager of the Rolland F. McCrillis Co. Inc., a company which specializes in custom-made products from wood.

Members of the Class of 1896 were Orville Newton, Ella Morrison, Wilbur Hoffines, Gertrude Teegardin (a sister of Curtis Teegardin), and Walter Hoover. All are reported to be deceased.

This graduating class of five members is in sharp contrast with the final graduating class of 1962 which numbered 43 members. Ashville High School students now attend the new consolidated High School at Teays Valley.

HIGH ST. PUPPETEERS — By combining art, a favorite story and music, the fourth grade students of Mrs. Eloise Dunkel at High St. School presented their own shows with puppets they had made from inexpensive materials. The stage is a cardboard carton and scenery is made from construction paper. Mrs. Agnes Burmaster, art instructor, assisted with the project.

Music Program Set at Kingston

The vocal edition of the annual Spring Concert of the Kingston-Union Schools will be presented by the music department at 8 p. m. today in the auditorium.

Each elementary grade will present a children's story with music.

The elementary choir will sing sacred songs and the junior high choir will sing old-time favorites. The high school choir is to present selections from past spring concerts.

Special numbers will include a flute duet, a trumpet trio and selections by the dance band.

Three Plays To Be Staged At Logan Elm

Since the second semester began late in January, more than twenty-five Logan Elm High School students have been spending two evenings a week working on dramatics under the direction of Robert Ransom.

Beginning with pantomimes and monologues, the group is now putting the finishing touches on three one-act plays which will be presented for the public next Friday evening, April 26 at the high school.

The first play, a comedy, "Three on a Bench" tells how a loveable old lady goes about settling a lover's quarrel. The cast includes Steve Benner, Becky Alkire, Page Miller, and Larry Downs. Joan Enoch is the prompter for this play.

The second play, "Tell Dorie Not to Cry" shows the effect of the bombing of Pearl Harbor on plans for a wedding. Members of the cast are Janet DeLong, Anita Moats, Barbara Huber, Brenda List, Linda Trimmer and Cheryl Hulse. Carlene Fullen is the prompter.

The setting for the third play is a funeral and its leading character, Drexel Poling is the deceased. Leola Harmon plays the role of "Friend". Among the mourners are a mother and daughter, Jean Strous and Ginger Smalley; a husband and wife, Steve Benner and Judy Young; and a girl, fiancee of the deceased, Linda Dahl. Jim Lands plays the part of a gangster and Linda Dahl is also the prompter.

Working with tickets and publicity are Ginger Smalley and Leola Harmon.

Rehearsals Progressing For Musical

Rehearsals are progressing for the Teays Valley Spring Musical to be presented by elementary grades and junior high school at Walnut, Ashville and Scioto schools on May 3, 7 and 10 respectively.

Both humorous and serious skits and scenes will be presented. Solo and ensemble presentations will be featured throughout the musical program.

Black-light productions which cause objects to "glow" in the dark will be used with band selections "Go Down Moses", "Dry Bones", and "Were You There". Clowns and cartoon characters will please the youngsters in the production number, "Toyland". The instrumental ensemble presentation of "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue" promises to provide fun for folks of all ages as "Gertrude Klockenmyer" is featured.

Although standard scenery sets will be used for most selections, a slide projection method will also be used to provide more colorful and interesting settings and at the same time do away with troublesome scenic changes.

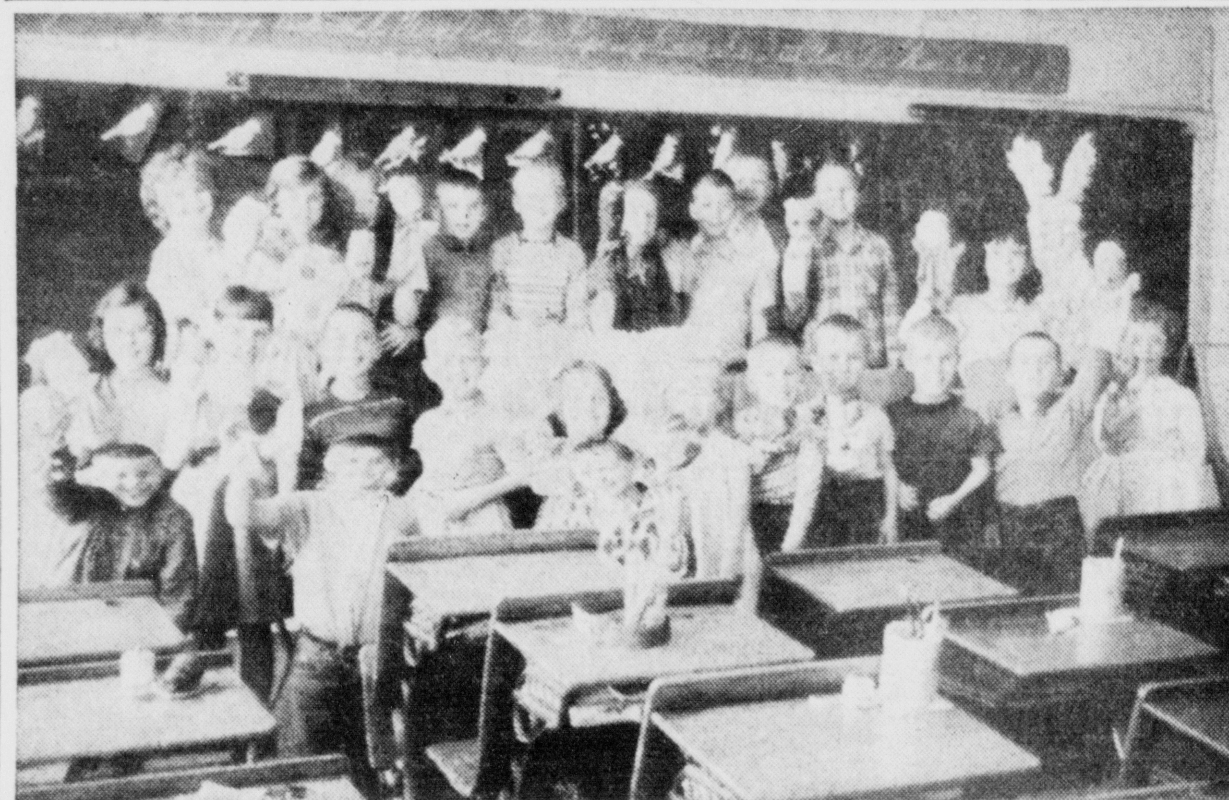

A patriotic finale based upon the theme "America the Beautiful" will bring an inspiring and thrilling ending to an evening of fun and entertainment.

EXTRA COLLAR—This is one of the custom made shirts sold at Todd Gilbert's men's shop in Chicago. That's an extra collar sewn on the tail of the shirt. The idea is, the extra collar gets the same laundering as the rest of the shirt, and when the time comes to replace the other collar, this one will be the same hue.

PUPPET PROJECT — These members of the third grade at Washington Twp. School enjoyed their tasks of making puppets for a combined social studies and art project. The puppets represented characters in six favorite stories written for children. Mothers of the pupils aided in making necessary costumes.

Washington Third Graders Complete Puppet Project

The leading lady who becomes ill or the child with stage fright or measles have made tragedies of comedies since humans began performing for the entertainment of others.

However, Mrs. Karen Adkins, third grade teacher at Washington Twp. School, solved this problem when she and her class began a theatrical project.

Each class member made a puppet as a combined social studies and art project. The puppets represented characters in six favorite stories.

When each class member had learned the lines to be spoken by his puppet, Mrs. Adkins recorded the speaking parts on tape. Thus the plays have gone on through a siege of flu, mumps and measles — sometimes with strange hands manipulating the puppets but with the same voices.

Each class member made his puppet head of paper-mache molded over a balloon blown to the proper size and shape. Help from mothers of class members was solicited in making the costumes. Twenty-five puppets were created.

When the fourth and fifth grades were guests of the third grade an easel beside the stage announced that the audience was to see "the greatest puppet show on earth". The program proceeded with Willis Fannin serving as master of ceremonies.

Beginning with "The Three Little Pigs" the characters were Mother Pig, Marcia Rhodes; First Pig, Jerry Norris; Second Pig, Karen Stiles; Third Pig, Jeff Young; Wolf, Willis Fannin. This was a musical production with the three little pigs singing, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?"

The second Puppet show was "The Three Bears" with Janet Simmons as Goldilocks, Gary Benner as Papa Bear, Debbie Ely as Mama Bear and Jimmy Peters as Baby Bear. The next play was "Rumpelstiltskin" with a cast of characters which included Steven Carter as the King, Lettisha Miller as the Miller's Daughter and Jeffrey Russell as Rumpelstiltskin.

For "Hansel and Gretel" the characters were Father, Mike Dyke; Hansel, Bob Helwage; Gretel, Sharon Boyse; and the Witch, Cindy Willis. For "Red Riding Hood" the title role was played by Yvonne Wiggins; the Wolf by Billy Bryant; the Grandmother by Donna Teets and the Wood Cutter by Bruce Hardman. The last play "The Golden Ball" had Becky Moss as the Princess; George Baughman as the Frog; Debbie Wilder as the King and Vertie Teets as the Prince.

Jackson Calendar Of Events Listed

The schedule of coming events for the remainder of the school year at Jackson Twp. was listed today as follows:

April 25—Senior Girls' Reception at 8 p. m. in the Nicholas Drive School; April 27—Basketball Banquet, 7 p. m. school cafeteria; May 6—Scholarship Carry-in Dinner, 7 p. m. school cafeteria; May 10—Junior-Senior Banquet; May 13—Band Concert, 8 p. m. auditorium; May 26—Baccalaureate, 8 p. m. auditorium; May 27—Commencement, 8 p. m., auditorium.

Class Pictures On Display at Ashville School

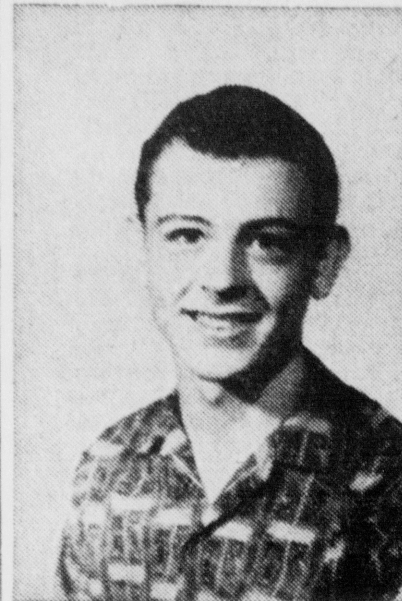

Visitors to the Ashville Elementary School have the opportunity to see pictures of the Class of 1896, the first graduating class of Ashville High School, as well as pictures of the final graduating class of 1962 displayed in the school corridor.

The picture of the Class of 1896 was furnished through the courtesy of Rolland F. McCrillis of Norwalk, who many years ago married one of the graduates, Miss Ella Morrison. McCrillis is owner and manager of the Rolland F. McCrillis Co. Inc., a company which specializes in custom-made products from wood.

Members of the Class of 1896 were Orville Newton, Ella Morrison, Wilbur Hoffines, Gertrude Teegardin (a sister of Curtis Teegardin), and Walter Hoover. All are reported to be deceased.

Scholarship Awarded to LE Student

JAMES WILSON

James Wilson, sophomore at Logan Elm High School, has been awarded a summer science scholarship at Asbury College, Wilmore Ky. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reed Wilson of Jefferson Subdivision.

Students nominated for the scholarships may elect to study biology, physics or chemistry for credit in their local high school. To be recommended for the scholarship the student must be in the upper five per cent of his class scholastically and be outstanding in other school areas. Scholarships are limited to tenth graders or very outstanding ninth graders.

The summer science session at Asbury is financed entirely with federal funds and the classes are taught by outstanding government approved science instructors. The seven-week session, which runs from June 17 to August 9, includes both study and recreation.

As a top ranking student, Wilson is a member of the Logan Elm Scholarship team for the second year. He will represent Logan Elm in the Final District Scholarship tests at Ohio State University in world history this year. Last year he took the test in general Science. He is also active in music, is a member of both chorus and band at Logan Elm and for the County Music Festival. He participated as a trumpet soloist in the Ohio Music Education Association competitions at Capital University. He is also a member of the Choralists, a vocal ensemble made up of Logan Elm High School students.

The award winner has selected biology as his subject for study at Asbury.

931 TRANSFUSIONS — Fred Wallace, 17, leaves Baylor University Hospital in Dallas, Tex., after six and one half months and 931 pints of blood. Fred, from Muskogee, Okla., has hemophilia.

SPRING CREATIONS — Students of Mrs. Reda Gatlin, third grade teacher at High St. Elementary School, created their own hat designs. The 32 members of the class utilized crepe and construction paper, old hats, artificial flowers and ribbons in putting together their spring chapeau.

HIGH ST. PUPPETEERS — By combining art, a favorite story and music, the fourth grade students of Mrs. Eloise Dunkel at High St. School presented their own shows with puppets they had made from inexpensive materials. The stage is a cardboard carton and scenery is made from construction paper. Mrs. Agnes Burmaster, art instructor, assisted with the project.

Music Program Set at Kingston

The vocal edition of the annual Spring Concert of the Kingston-Union Schools will be presented by the music department at 8 p. m. today in the auditorium.

Each elementary grade will present a children's story with music. The elementary choir will sing sacred songs and the junior high choir will sing old-time favorites. The high school choir is to present selections from past spring concerts. Special numbers will include a flute duet, a trumpet trio and selections by the dance band.

PREVIEWS OF PROGRESS

THE SUNMOBILE — The amazing Sunmobile, a car that runs on sunshine, is shown here in action in this time exposure. The button-like photovoltaic cells on the hood turn light energy into electrical energy to move the model car. A 300-watt lamp simulates the sun. The Sunmobile is one of the demonstrations in the General Motors science show, Previews of Progress.

Science Demonstration Show Scheduled at CHS, Logan Elm

"Liquid sunshine" powers a portable radio. A small boat-shaped vehicle floats on a cushion of air. And a "misbehaving" suitcase illustrates principles used in modern guidance systems.

Circleville and Logan Elm high school students will see these and other interesting demonstrations when the famed General Motors science show, Previews of Progress, appears for a special performance at each of the schools.

The show will be presented at Circleville High School at 1 and 2 p. m. Monday and at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the Logan Elm High School auditorium.

"We seek through previews to inspire more young people to make science and engineering their career and provide the trained talent America must have to keep pace with the promise of the future," John F. Gordon, president of General Motors, declared.

David L. Busch and Richard D. Olshove of General Motors public relations staff will narrate the 45-minute, non-commercial presentation. They are one of seven teams that take the show to more than a million students each year.

One of the highlights is a fuel cell, a device that converts chemical energy into electrical power. Potentially one of the most significant scientific developments of the century, the fuel cell manufactures electricity with much greater efficiency than is now obtained from conventional power plants.

In the show, a few drops of "liquid sunshine" added to the cells provide enough energy to operate a portable radio.

Another example of solar energy, the amazing Sunmobile, will be demonstrated. The 15-inch model car depends on eight photovoltaic cells for its operation. The button-like cells on the hood of the car convert light rays into electricity which drives a small electrical motor inside the car. A 300-watt lamp is used to simulate the sun's rays in this show. As the light strikes the cells, the Sunmobile moves smoothly across a table.

Students will also see the Exploding Wire Phenomenon. Using the principle of stored energy, a 10-watt power supply furnishes over 30-million watts in an instant to demonstrate the electrical disintegration of a fine wire. This phenomenon may some day propel space vehicles.

Other preview demonstrations include examples of the wonders of modern chemistry and a capsule history of jet propulsion traced 200 B. C. to futuristic gas turbine power.

Air Pollution Campaign Set For State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A network of sampling stations will be taking deep breaths of Ohio air by the end of June, state health officials say.

They want to determine the degree of air pollution in city and county, industrial and residential, and high and low volume traffic areas. The findings will be used as a yardstick to see whether the situation remains the same, gets better or worsens.

Jack Wunderle, engineer-in-charge of air pollution for the state health department said there will be 21 stations. Local health department or city service departments will supervise them, he said.

Arrangements still are being made, but the first station should be set up within two weeks, and all 21 by June 30, Wunderle said. He said locations will be announced when arrangements are complete.

Radar Warning Ban Is Sought

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Democratic Hamilton County lawmaker wants to "take the sport out of speed."

Rep. Harry H. McIlwain said Thursday he will introduce a bill next week to eliminate radar warning signs along Ohio highways.

"There is no conceivable reason today that a law violator cannot be apprehended until notified that he is being watched," McIlwain said. Cincinnati Municipal Court judges have been dismissing charges against motorists who contend radar signs are not visible enough to comply with state law.

McIlwain said he plans to invoke the privilege of the House or else ask a senator to introduce the bill. No more new legislation may be introduced in the House.

SCIOTO GRANGE

Scioto Grange ladies were entertained by the men at the April meeting. Delicious ham sandwiches, potato chips, pickles, coffee, and iced tea were served at the close of the meeting. Elbert Becker was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. A program was presented by Kenneth Beach.

The Grange members were to go to the Salt Creek Valley Grange on Tuesday to present a traveling program.

First and second degrees will be conferred on two candidates at the meeting tomorrow.

Dues are payable to the secretary at this time.

Star Grange met in regular session Tuesday evening in the Monroe School auditorium with Worthy Master, Carroll Reid presiding over the business session.

The secretary, Helen Schleich, read a thank you note from Mrs. Paul Dawson for flowers received while in the hospital and a letter of appreciation from Mr. John F. Dowler for assistance at the Replogle Sale. An appeal for aid was answered and Mrs. Schleich announced that Pickaway County Pomona Grange will present a traveling program on Saturday evening, April 20 at Croftis Grange in Fairfield County, near Lancaster. Several Star Grange members will appear on the program.

The home Economics chairman, Mrs. Francis Furniss, thanked all who helped with the basketball banquet last Saturday evening and urged the women to get their sewing ready for the contest.

The first and second degrees were conferred on Miss Carol Sue Grabbill and Miss Rose Adene Huffman by the Women's degree team. The third and fourth degrees will be given at the next regular meeting April 23.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Long and Gene, Mrs. Lloyd Neff and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Follrod.

Ohio Securities Law Expected To Stay As Is

No Major Revision Anticipated from Current Legislation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It appears unlikely that there will be any major revision of Ohio's securities laws during this session of the legislature.

But several recent developments have focused attention on public sale and licensing of securities, and some Ohio officials are saying it's time to give the state's securities law a good going-over. If changes are needed, they say, they could be made in the 1965 legislature.

State Sen. Theodore M. Gray, R-Piquette, says he plans to introduce a resolution, later this session, calling for a study of Ohio's securities law.

As envisioned by Gray, this would be done by the legislature's research arm — the Legislative Service Commission — and be ready before the 106th General Assembly meets in 1965.

In its relatively short lifetime, the commission never has made a specific study of securities laws, although it touched on the subject in a 1958-60 study of laws governing commercial transactions.

Among recent developments have been a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation, resulting attempts in Congress to correct some of the "serious shortcomings" reported by the SEC, and—closer to home — attempts by Ohio and federal officials to straighten out the affairs of Certified Credit Corp.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe agrees with Sen. Gray that, if changes are made in Ohio's securities laws, provisions should not be so restrictive as to prevent legitimate ventures.

"The preponderance of people in the securities field and small loan companies is doing a good job," Saxbe says. But he says Ohio officials "need the power to move in faster" on violators and thinks it may be found wise to limit use of money from thrift certificates to money-lending, "not going out on the securities market or real estate."

Ohio's securities laws have been on the books in essentially their present form since the Depression days of 1929.

"The act has not had a general overhauling since that time, although there have been some minor amendments," says Ralph A. Winter, former state legislator and public utilities commissioner who recently became superintendent of securities for Ohio.

"It's like any statute on the books that long. Maybe it's time to take a look at it to see if it kept pace with the economic growth of the state."

Nicholas J. Kiraly, supervisor of securities under Winter in the State Commerce Department, says the 34-year-old act has been significantly free of challenging litigation.

Like Saxbe and Gray, they feel too tight a law might stifle Ohio's industrial development. And Winter thinks Gov. James A. Rhodes'

General J. Edward Day has hinted parcel post service may be shut down July 1 and Saturday mail deliveries suspended.

What may lead to an end of parcel post, Day told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on Wednesday, is "an impossible hodgepodge of legislation" that he said would require radical increases in the rates for handling packages.

Day tied the chance for suspension of Saturday service — and possible denial of service to new homes and businesses — to the $92 million cut by the House from the $6-billion Post Office-Treasury appropriation bill.

The Senate subcommittee chairman, A. Willis Robertson, didn't give Day cause for much cheer. Only about one-fourth of what the House cuts is eventually restored before Congress completes its work on the budget, the Virginia Democrat told the postmaster general.

The parcel post situation stems so that revenues for this service are within 4 per cent of costs.

The department loses money on parcel post — it accounts for $127 million of the $231-million deficit expected in the year ahead — and if the provision is followed, Day said, over-all rates would have to go up at least 25 per cent and the rates on smaller packages about 40 per cent.

Appealing for a Senate rider to cancel the 4-per-cent formula for a year, Day described the provision as self-defeating. His reasoning: The increase in rates will drive away business, throwing parcel post deeper in the red.

OVERSEAS TOURS: Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has given the military services greater leeway in setting overseas tours.

Men who leave their families at home may have their overseas tours cut to a year. They now are sent abroad for as long as two years. And men who take their families with them may be asked to serve abroad for four years instead of the present three.

POPULATION CONTROL: The National Academy of Sciences has called for an international effort to cope with "uncontrolled population growth."

"In our judgment, this problem can be successfully attacked by developing new methods of fertility regulation and implementing programs of voluntary family planning widely and rapidly throughout the world."

Based on the present rate of population increase, the academy forecast there would be 6 billion people in the world by the year 2000 and about 25 billion by the year 2070. The present world population is in excess of 3 billion.

Nationwide Mum On Alleghany Deal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Directors of Nationwide Insurance Co. have refused to disclose, following a day-long meeting here Thursday, whether they discussed the possible purchase of stock in Alleghany Corp.

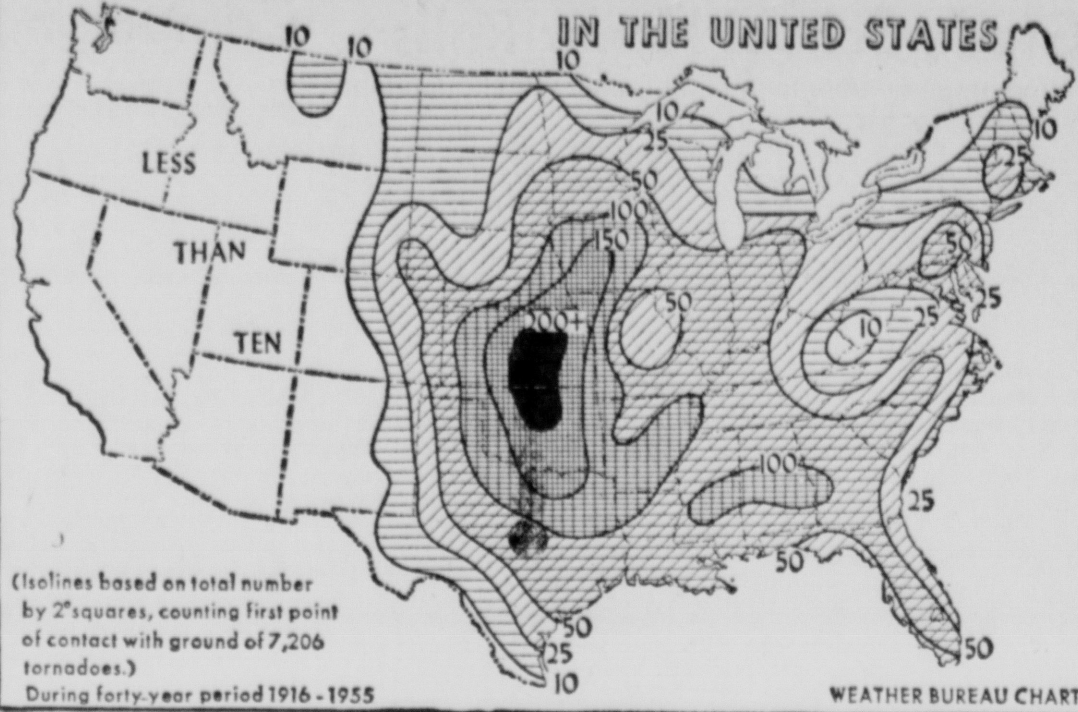

It has been reported that Murray D. Lincoln, head of Nationwide, is interested in Alleghany in order to add a mutual funds organization to his insurance activities.

He reportedly is supporting efforts by Allan P. Kirby, who lost control of the Alleghany Corp. nearly two years ago, to regain control of the holding company.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now it's up to the Kennedy administration to explain why Cuban refugees, perhaps 4,000 of them, are being trained in the American armed forces—and for what.

Neither President Kennedy nor the Defense Department has ever clearly explained it. Some of the training has been in amphibious warfare, the kind that would come in handy in an invasion of Cuba.

But the administration now not only shows no signs of wanting such an invasion but has even blocked the Cuban refugees from making hit-and-run raids on Fidel Castro's island from American soil.

And Thursday a leader of the refugees—Dr. Jose Miro Cardona—hit the President from two directions, neither of them flattering.

1. He said Kennedy ran out on a promise—"absolute and total"—to back a second invasion of Cuba. He said Kennedy made the promise right after the first invasion failed in 1961. Kennedy took responsibility for that one.

2. And the Cuban, just retired as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, implied that Premier Khrushchev outwitted the President by putting Soviet troops in Cuba.

After that, Miro said, "American government policy has shifted suddenly, violently and unexpectedly."

Miro said that in conversations with Kennedy he understood the American armed forces would train refugee volunteers briefly and that they then would be regrouped in a single army.

But he said that since last fall—when Khrushchev put both missiles and troops in Cuba—Kennedy has become increasingly cautious about any action which might involve this country with Russia.

Although Khrushchev pulled his missiles out—when Kennedy forced a showdown — he left his troops there. Kennedy wanted the troops out. Khrushchev took some out. But Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said Thursday he sent back in as many as he took out. Kennedy has avoided any showdown about the troops.

Miro made his complaint against Kennedy in a 6,500-word blast. When it became known several days ago that he intended to do this, the State Department issued a statement attempting to discredit him.

It said his account of his conversations with Kennedy were "highly inaccurate and distorted." Even before this statement came out a U.S. government source said Miro had demanded a voice in a U.S. invasion of Cuba or else $50 million to equip an invasion against Castro.

Miro is not the only exile leader to belittle Kennedy's zeal for trying to dislodge Castro. Others did it April 3. One of them, Dr. Orlando Bosch, pretty well expressed what the others said in this sentence:

"As for joining the U.S. Army, we don't agree with any plan the U.S. government may have because so far it has demonstrated nothing but indecision regarding direct action against Castro."

At his news conference that same day Kennedy was extremely vague about future action against Cuba. He was equally vague on why any Cuban refugees should join the U.S. armed forces.

He said the trainees "can serve with the common cause. I think there are a good many very determined, persistent Cubans who are determined that their island should be free, and we wish to assist them."

He did not say at any time publicly his invitation to the refugees to join the American Army would lead to direct action against Castro. But that only makes this basic question more pertinent:

If they're not being prepared for an invasion, then why is this government going to the expense and trouble of training them?

The youths, ages 17 and 16, were not identified since they are juveniles. Roush said formal charges probably would be filed today.

Today is Friday, April 19th, the 109th day of 1963. There are 256 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this day in 1775, the American Revolutionary War began. On the green at Lexington, Mass. 75 patriots exchanged shots with British troops who had marched from Boston to destroy Colonial supplies at Concord.

On this day: In 1824, death came to the famed English poet, Lord Byron. In 1892, surplus Indian lands in Oklahoma were opened for settlement.

In 1917, the first shot by U.S. forces was fired in World War I. In 1942, Gen. Douglas MacArthur formally established the Southwest Pacific Command during World War II.

In 1960, 80 persons were killed in riots in South Korea against the allegedly fraudulent re-election of President Syngman Rhee.

Today's birthdays: Nuclear chemist Glenn Seaborg is 51. Actress Jayne Mansfield is 30.

Ohio Securities Law Expected To Stay As Is

No Major Revision Anticipated from Current Legislation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It appears unlikely that there will be any major revision of Ohio's securities laws during this session of the legislature.

But several recent developments have focused attention on public sale and licensing of securities, and some Ohio officials are saying it's time to give the state's securities law a good going-over. If changes are needed, they say, they could be made in the 1965 legislature.

State Sen. Theodore M. Gray, R-Piqua, says he plans to introduce a resolution later this session, calling for a study of Ohio's securities laws.

As envisioned by Gray, this would be done by the legislature's research arm — the Legislative Service Commission — and be ready before the 106th General Assembly meets in 1965.

In its relatively short lifetime, the commission never has made a specific study of securities laws, although it touched on the subject in a 1958-60 study of laws governing commercial transactions.

Among recent developments have been a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation, resulting attempts in Congress to correct some of the "serious shortcomings" reported by the SEC, and closer to home — attempts by Ohio and federal officials to straighten out the affairs of Certified Credit Corp.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe agrees with Sen. Gray that, if changes are made in Ohio's securities laws, provisions should not be so restrictive as to prevent legitimate ventures.

"The preponderance of people in the securities field and small loan companies is doing a good job," Saxbe says. But he says Ohio officials "need the power to move in faster" on violators and thinks it may be found wise to limit use of money from thrift certificates to money-lending, "not going out on the securities market or real estate."

Saxbe concurs in the idea of a between sessions study, saying: "I don't think we're prepared to throw in a bill in this session."

Ohio's securities laws have been on the books in essentially their present form since the Depression days of 1929.

"The act has not had a general overhauling since that time, although there have been some minor amendments," says Ralph A. Winter, former state legislator and public utilities commissioner who recently became superintendent of securities for Ohio.

"It's like any statute on the books that long. Maybe it's time to take a look at it to see if it's kept pace with the economic growth of the state."

Nicholas J. Kiraly, supervisor of securities under Winter in the State Commerce Department, says the 34-year-old act has been significantly free of challenging litigation.

Like Saxbe and Gray, they feel too tight a law might stifle Ohio's industrial development. And Winter thinks Gov. James A. Rhodes' so-called task force on state government reorganization might have some ideas.

Tiger Cindermen Lose Dual Meet At Bexley

Wood, Hanson, Trego Earn First Place Honors for Circleville

Circleville High School's thin-clads were defeated by Bexley, 75-38, in a dual meet yesterday at the Columbus suburb school.

Jim Wood was the only double winner for the Tigers, taking first in both hurdle events. The slender Tiger timber topper won the highs in 16.4 seconds and the lows in 22 seconds flat.

Skip Hanson, nearing his last year's form, blazed to a 10.3 win in the 100-yard dash. He finished second to Bexley's Harbold in the 220 who won in 23.6.

George Trego, defending South Central Ohio League champion in the high jump, cleared the bar at 5-feet 8-inches in his first competition of the year to win the event.

THREE CIRCLEVILLE competitors turned in their best performances of the year although they did not win. Gene Smith placed third in the discus with a heave of 126-feet 8-inches, just one inch shy of the second place winner.

Freshman Larry Morgan, although he did not place in the mile event, turned in a creditable time of 5:09.

Bexley earned all three places in the 440 and the 880 for a big advantage in the scoring.

Missing the meet for Circleville because of illness were Larry Plum and Steve Bowers.

Reds Face 3-Game Series with Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds open a three-game series with the Pirates today and Joey Jay is hoping his teammates will give him some scoring support.

Jay has lost both his starts and both by a single run. He gave up five hits in each game.

The 6-foot-4 righthander had the same sort of trouble early in the 1961 season, but everything ended well that time. The Reds won the National League pennant and Jay became the team's first 20-game winner in more than a decade.

Bob Friend, who has already beaten Cincinnati once this year, was expected to start against Jay.

Monroe Edges Darby, 4-2 In Semifinal Tourney Tilt

Monroe squeezed past Darby, 4-2, yesterday at Commercial Point, to earn a berth in the finals of the Pickaway County baseball tournament.

The Indians will face Logan Elm in the finals of the event, Tuesday at Jackson. Two teams from the county go on to district play.

Randy Richardson was the winning hurler, although he needed relief help from Mickey Hunt in the last inning to preserve the win. Richardson fanned five, walked three and gave up six hits. Hunt whiffed one, walked one and allowed one hit.

David Rowland went the distance for the Trojans, fanning two and giving up two bases on balls — both of them intentional walks.

THE WINNERS' big inning came

Braves Take 7-2 Decision Over Deers

The Logan Elm Braves stretched their season record to two wins and three losses yesterday, defeating Williamsport-Atlanta High School, 7-2, in a county tournament game at Pickaway Twp. School.

Braves baseball coach Dow West credited two — hit pitching by Jeff Lutz as the big factor in the game. Lutz struck out 14 batters and didn't issue a single walk. He hurled the entire seven innings.

Bruce Willis was the losing pitcher. He allowed nine hits. The lone extra base blow was a double by Bryon Rose that scored Williamsport's run in the fourth inning.

LOGAN ELM jumped to an early lead, scoring three runs in the first inning. They tallied two runs in both the fifth and the sixth frames.

The tournament game was originally scheduled at the Jackson diamond, but rain during the night made the infield too muddy there. Both coaches agreed to play at Pickaway.

The win entitles the Braves to a shot in the district tournament regardless of the outcome of the county finals Tuesday. Monroe is the other tournament finalist.

The game is scheduled to be played on the Jackson Twp. diamond.

Logan Elm has scheduled conference games with Union to tomorrow and with Paint Valley Monday.

West said he intends to save Lutz for the tournament game and will probably give Jim Hicks the starting mound nod in both loop contests.

Fish Waiting, But Fishermen In Ohio Shy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The fish are hungry and waiting, stream and lake conditions are perfect, the weather is ideal—but Ohio's rod and reel set seems to be ignoring the whole thing.

So said the State Wildlife Division today in its weekly report on the piscatorial picture.

"Apparently the fishing fever hasn't hit too many anglers as yet," the division surmised as it outlined this sectional setup:

NORTHWESTERN: No real hot spots, but lakes and streams in good shape. Stream fishermen taking bullheads, carp and suckers, and lakes are yielding bass and bluegills.

EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTHEASTERN: Lakes report excellent results — tops being Burr, Piedmont, Forked Run and Veto. Where bass, bluegills, catfish and crappies being taken. Little and Big Muskingums perfect for stream fishing, as are Little Hocking and Shade rivers.

Junior High Track Team Third at Chillicothe Event

The Circleville Junior High School track team placed third in a five team meet held at Chillicothe Mt. Logan School yesterday.

The Tigers cubs scored 40 points. Chillicothe Western won the event with 59 1/2 points. Mt. Logan was second with 56 1/2, Chillicothe West was fourth with 37 1/2 and Frankfort was fifth with 12 1/2.

Tom Jenkins was the outstanding performer in the meet with three first place wins. He copped the 220 yard dash in 28 seconds, came back to win the 440 in 62.3 and hurled the discus 91 feet to win that event.

Tim Stonerock placed second in the 100-yard dash and the shot-put for the Tigers. Tigner tied for second in the high jump clearing the bar at 4-feet 9-inches. Third place wins by the kittens were earned by Brad Marshall in the broad jump and Glen Plum in the pole vault.

The Tigers placed fourth in both relay events and fifth place efforts were turned in by Craig Benzenberg in the 120 low hurdles, Terry Martin in the 880 and Bill Pritchard in the 220 dash.

Coaches John Adler and Jim Lint expect more participants to turn out for junior high track with the completion of the six weeks grading period Friday, giving added depth for the meet with South-eastern next week at Chillicothe.

Circleville pitchers was 10 strikeouts, five walks and seven hits.

$20,000 Purse Is Offered In Annual State Trapshoot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's 77th annual state trapshoot, scheduled June 12-16 at Vandalia, figures to be the most star-spangled in history.

Guaranteed purses have been hoisted to $20,000, plus $1750 in silver trophies and $120 for entertaining the feminine contingent.

For years the Buckeye barrage has dwarfed those in other states—and the domination is due to continue. A year ago 532,000 clay targets were thrown during the five-day classic, and Atty. Gen. William Saxbe — president of the Ohio State Trapshooters Association—expects the figure to climb to 675,000 this year.

The 1962 handicap race attracted 901 entrants from 17 states, making it the biggest trap shoot not a part of the Grand American. Previous handicap high for the state handicap was 633 at Findlay in 1960. The 200 target 16-yard race drew 374 shooters, far over the previous state record of 347 set by Wisconsin in 1961.

Prior to the big Vandalia state shoot, four Ohio zone competitions are on tap to name champions and five-man team representatives for special events in the Ohio meet.

The zone affairs, where the programs will consist of 100 targets at 16 yards, 100 at handicaps and 25 pairs of doubles, are slated May 19 at Steubenville and Middletown, and May 26 at Pataaskala and Bellevue. Practice will be permitted on the title traps the day before the competitions.

Re-loaded shells will be permitted in the state shoot, a shift from the Grand American rules which allow only factor-manufactured ammunition in the Western Hemisphere classic. The shooters will use 32 traps during the last two days at the state shoot, assuring a before-dark finish.

The 1962 races drew competitors from Ohio, Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Ontario, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Wisconsin. All are expected to be represented again.

Tiger Cindermen Lose Dual Meet At Bexley

Wood, Hanson, Trego Earn First Place Honors for Circleville

Circleville High School's thirclads were defeated by Bexley, 75-38, in a dual meet yesterday at the Columbus suburb school.

Jim Wood was the only double winner for the Tigers, taking first in both hurdle events. The slender Tiger timber toppler won the highs in 16.4 seconds and the lows in 22 seconds flat.

Skip Hanson, nearing his last year's form, blazed to a 10.3 win in the 100-yard dash. He finished second to Bexley's Harbold in the 220 who won in 23.6.

George Trego, defending South Central Ohio League champion in the high jump, cleared the bar at 5-feet 8-inches in his first competition of the year to win the event.

THREE CIRCLEVILLE competitors turned in their best performances of the year although they did not win. Gene Smith placed third in the discus with a heave of 126-feet 8-inches, just one inch shy of the second place winner.

Carl Zehner ran the mile in 5:05.3 for his best time ever to place second.

Freshman Larry Morgan, although he did not place in the mile event, turned in a creditable time of 5:09.

Bexley earned all three places in the 440 and the 880 for a big advantage in the scoring.

Missing the meet for Circleville because of illness were Larry Plum and Steve Bowers.

Reds Face 3-Game Series with Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds open a three-game series with the Pirates today and Joey Jay is hoping his teammates will give him some scoring support.

Jay has lost both his starts and both by a single run. He gave up five hits in each game.

The 6-foot-4 righthander had the same sort of trouble early in the 1961 season, but everything ended well that time. The Reds won the National League pennant and Jay became the team's first 20-game winner in more than a decade.

Bob Friend, who has already beaten Cincinnati once this year, was expected to start against Jay.

Monroe Edges Darby, 4-2 In Semifinal Tourney Tilt

Monroe squeezed past Darby, 4-2, yesterday at Commercial Point, to earn a berth in the finals of the Pickaway County baseball tournament.

The Indians will face Logan Elm in the finals of the event, Tuesday at Jackson. Two teams from the county go on to district play.

Randy Richardson was the winning hurler, although he needed relief help from Mickey Hunt in the last inning to preserve the win. Richardson fanned five, walked three and gave up six hits. Hunt whiffed one, walked one and allowed one hit.

David Rowland went the distance for the Trojans, fanning two and giving up two bases on balls, both of them intentional walks.

Braves Take 7-2 Decision Over Deers

The Logan Elm Braves stretched their season record to two wins and three losses yesterday, defeating Williamsport-Atlanta High School, 7-2, in a county tournament game at Pickaway Twp. School.

Braves baseball coach Dow West credited two hit pitching by Jeff Lutz as the big factor in the game. Lutz struck out 14 batters and didn't issue a single walk. He hurled the entire seven innings.

Bruce Willis was the losing pitcher. He allowed nine hits. The lone extra base blow was a double by Bryon Rose that scored Williamsport's run in the fourth inning.

LOGAN ELM jumped to an early lead, scoring three runs in the first inning. They tallied two runs in both the fifth and the sixth frames.

The tournament game was originally scheduled at the Jackson diamond, but rain during the night made the infield too muddy there. Both coaches agreed to play at Pickaway.

The win entitles the Braves to a shot in the district tournament regardless of the outcome of the county finals Tuesday. Monroe is the other tournament finalist.

The game is scheduled to be played on he Jackson Twp. diamond.

Logan Elm has scheduled conference games with Union to tomorrow and with Paint Valley Monday.

West said he intends to save Lutz for the tournament game and will probably give Jim Hicks the starting mound nod in both loop contests.

Fish Waiting, But Fishermen In Ohio Shy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The fish are hungry and waiting, stream and lake conditions are perfect, the weather is ideal—but Ohio's rod and reel set seems to be ignoring the whole thing.

So said the State Wildlife Division today in its weekly report on the piscatorial picture.

"Apparently the fishing fever hasn't hit too many anglers as yet," the division surmised as it outlined this sectional setup:

NORTHWESTERN: No real hot spots, but lakes and streams in good shape. Stream fishermen taking bullheads, carp and suckers, and lakes are yielding bass and bluegills.

EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTH-EASTERN: Lakes report excellent results — tops being Burr, Piedmont, Forked Run and Veto.

$20,000 Purse Is Offered In Annual State Trapshoot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's 77th annual state trapshoot, scheduled June 12-16 at Vandallia, figures to be the most star-spangled in history.

Guaranteed purses have been hoisted to $20,000, plus $1750 in silver trophies and $120 for entertaining the feminine contingent.

For years the Buckeye barrage has dwarfed those in other states—and the domination is due to continue. A year ago 532,000 clay targets were thrown during the five-day classic, and Atty. Ben. William Saxbe—president of the Ohio State Trapshooters Association—expects the figure to climb to 675,000 this year.

The 1962 handicap race attracted 901 entrants from 17 states, making it the biggest trap shoot not a part of the Grand American.

Previous handicap high for the state handicap was 633 at Findlay in 1960. The 200 target 16-yard race drew 574 shooters, far over the previous state record of 347 set by Wisconsin in 1961.

Prior to the big Vandallia state shoot, four Ohio zone competitions are on tap to name champions and five-man team representatives for special events in the Ohio meet.

The zone affairs, where the programs will consist of 100 targets at 16 yards, 100 at handicaps and 25 pairs of doubles, are slated May 19 at Steubenville and Middletown, and May 26 at Pataaskala and Bellevue. Practice will be permitted on the title traps the day before the competitions.

Re-loaded shells will be permitted in the state shoot, a shift from the Grand American rules which allow only factor-manufactured ammunition in the Western Hemisphere classic. The shooters will use 32 traps during the last two days at the state shoot, assuring a before-dark finish.

The 1962 races drew competitors from Ohio, Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Ontario, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Wisconsin. All are expected to be represented again.

Only the best of our used cars carry the Ford Dealer A-1 label and are backed by this exclusive guarantee

1 SERVICEABILITY GUARANTEE

Your Ford Dealer has inspected, road-tested and, if necessary, reconditioned every A-1 Used Car or Truck and guarantees that it is in serviceable condition.

2 FIRST-MONTH GUARANTEE

Under this guarantee your Ford Dealer, for the first 30 days (or 1,000 miles), will give a 50% cash discount on his regular retail price on any repairs he makes that are necessary to keep your car or truck in serviceable condition. (Except for tires and tubes, glass, or radio. And, of course, except in case of accident or abuse.)

3 TWO-YEAR GUARANTEE

Under this guarantee your Ford Dealer, for an additional period of two years, will give a 15% cash discount from his regular retail price on any repairs he makes that are necessary to keep your car or truck in serviceable condition. (Except, of course, in case of accident or abuse.)

Ohio Elks Plan 4-Day Convention

Several local lodge members plan to take part when the Ohio Elks Assn. meets in Columbus for its 65th annual state convention beginning Thursday. Sessions will be in the Neil House, convention headquarters.

Attending the four-day conclave which runs through Sunday will be delegates from 94 Elk Lodges in Ohio representing approximately 60,000 members. N. A. Bartram, Youngstown, state president, will preside.

Grand Exalted Ruler Lee A. Donaldson of Etan, Pa., who heads the nation's 1,300,000 Elks, will be principal speaker at a banquet Saturday night.

GOVERNOR James A. Rhodes will address Elk leadership and scholarship award winners at a Youth Day Luncheon to be held also on Saturday in conjunction with the convention. Youth from all over the state will be feted.

A state ritualistic contest with seven lodges participating will be held under the direction of Forrest Niswonger, Dayton, and the election and installation of state officers for the coming year is on the agenda.

Coiffures by Tiberi will present the latest in wig and hair creations at a party for wives of the delegates on Saturday afternoon.

Ohio Elk of the year and Ohio Elk Hall of Fame awards will be made and the meet will conclude on Sunday with a past exalted rulers breakfast and state governing board and trustees meeting.

Dr. Smith Elected To Indemnity Post

Dr. Robert G. Smith, 918 Circle Drive, has been elected treasurer of the Ohio Medical Indemnity Inc. He was named during the 18th annual board of directors meeting this week in Columbus.

Dr. Smith, also re-elected to the board of directors, replaces Charles S. Nelson, Columbus, who announced his retirement at the meeting.

Lorain Student Nabbed In Dispute over Money

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — A high school senior remained in fair condition today at St. Joseph Hospital with a stab wound suffered in an argument over money with another pupil.

Police said Thomas Clinkscales, 18, was stabbed in the back Thursday with a 4-inch fishing knife in Admiral King High School. Authorities said a 17-year-old youth was to be turned over to juvenile authorities after questioning.

Street Cleaning Moves Ahead; Weekly Schedule Is Announced

A street cleaning program for the city, now well under way, will move into its second week on Monday.

Service Director Ronald Sharrett today announced the schedule of streets that are due for sweeping next week. The concentrated cleaning program opened this week and has moved along at a steady pace.

Sharrett again requested residents to cooperate in moving their autos on days scheduled for sweeping respective streets. He said a more satisfactory job can be accomplished if this cooperation is forthcoming.

Here is the schedule starting April 22:

Monday — Main St. south side from Pickaway to Mingo; Franklin St. north side from Pickaway to Main.

Tuesday — Main St. north side from Pickaway to Mingo; Franklin St. south side from Pickaway to E. Main.

Wednesday — Pickaway St. west side from Hargus Creek to south corporation line; Washington St. east side from High to south corporation line.

Thursday — Pickaway St. east side from Hargus Creek to South corporation line; Washington St. west side from High to south corporation line.

Friday — Scioto St. west side from Hargus Creek to Harrison; Western Ave. both sides.
